Opposition Cries "Resign" When Only 48 Majority Given on Foreign Office Measure Vote.

DEBATE OPENED ON RUHR QUESTION

Labor Leader Bitter in Denunciation of Tory Regime's Policy on Occupation of Germany.

BY RALPH H. TURNER.
United News Staff Correspondent.
London, March 13.—The strength of Bonar Law's Tory government was reduced to the lowest margin of the present parliamentary session Monday night when it obtained a bare 48 majority in support of the Ruhr policy.

"Resign" was the cry directed by members of the opposition to the government bench when the vote of 249 to 201 was announced.

The government's test came when Sir John Simon, a liberal, introduced an amendment which would cut the appropriation of the foreign office, but which was used merely as a technical method for opening the debate on the Ruhr.

The vote followed labor and liberal attacks on the government's "policy of inertia." Herbert Asquith, leader of the Asquithian liberals, asserted that the French encirclement of the British area on the Rhine practically resulted in the stagnation of British trade in that part of the world.

Defends Policy.
Defending the policy of the government, Ronald McKinnon declared that the difference between France and Britain was one of method and not of principle. McKinnon said the government recognized "the terrible seriousness of the situation," adding that the critics offered little practical advice except to the suggestion that the Ruhr embargo be referred to the league of nations. The speaker, however, said he was convinced that league intervention, in view of France's present temper, would be "absolutely useless."

He pleaded that the government was anxious to maintain, if possible, friendship with France and avoid a final break in the entente.

Occupation Amendment.
Simon, in the debate, condemned the French occupation of the Ruhr as a violation of the treaty of Versailles, which threatens to bring about a new war.

In pointing out that the French occupation was damaging British commercial interests, Simon said the Versailles treaty "never contemplated that one power should do as she likes against the wishes of her other allies."

He made the charge that "France was not out for reparations but something else." Simon declared he saw no indications that the German resistance was weakening and deplored the government's policy of "drift and acquiescence."

Ed Morel, a laborite, declared that if France continues her present policy, she would plunge the country into war.

U. S. WILL BATTLE COTTON WEEVIL WITH AIRPLANES

Spraying Apparatus on Planes Will Scatter Poison Over Wide Areas in Short Time.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, March 13.—The boll weevil, which has cost cotton planters of the south billions of dollars and has withstood numerous onslaughts aimed at their eradication, now will be attacked from the air by army planes in a new method of warfare.

The department of agriculture called on the war department for a loan of several airplanes and today three specially equipped machines were furnished.

Active work against the boll weevil will start in June at the experiment station at Tallulah, La., where last year effective results were accomplished by the same method against the cotton leaf worm.

Spray From Machines.
Special spraying apparatus will be attached to the planes, which will scatter poison over the fields. Agents of the department believe this is the most practical method yet advanced for the control of the boll weevil and early experiments indicate the system could be adopted with beneficial results over the entire cotton belt.

Secretary Wallace requested thirteen planes, five for a period of 12 months and eight for four months. Secretary Davis said he had conferred with Major-General Patrick, chief of the army air service, and found such a shortage of equipment and personnel as to make full compliance with the agricultural department's request impossible. In assigning the three machines and pilots he said the war department had made a maximum effort to co-operate.

Defending the policy of the government, Ronald McKinnon declared that the difference between France and Britain was one of method and not of principle. McKinnon said the government recognized "the terrible seriousness of the situation," adding that the critics offered little practical advice except to the suggestion that the Ruhr embargo be referred to the league of nations. # RUTH DEFENDANT IN $50,000 SUIT FILED BY GIRL

Assault Is Charged to "Home-Run King." "Babe" Declares He Is Victim of Blackmail.

SUIT WAS KEPT
QUIET FOR MONTHS

Girl in Case Missing From Gotham Apartments. Attorneys, However, Say She Will Be Produced.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New York, March 13.—George Herman ("Babe") Ruth has been made defendant in a suit for $50,000 brought by attorneys for Miss Delores Dixon, 19, who charges that the baseball player assaulted her at various times last summer, Ruth's attorney disclosed tonight.

The attorney, Hyman Bushnell, said Ruth declared he was being blackmailed, and in a telegram from New Orleans signed by himself and Mrs. Ruth today, said he would "not pay a cent" but would "fight the charges to the limit."

Mr. Bushnell said the complainant, who, until two weeks ago occupied an apartment on Riverside Drive, had since disappeared and all efforts to find her to learn more about her have been futile.

Suit Kept Quiet.
George Feinberg, attorney for Miss Dixon, said today he knew where his client was but would not reveal her whereabouts "until the proper time arrived."

Ruth learned about the impending suit last November 14, when, according to Mr. Bushnell, the girl's counsel served the ballplayer with a summons. Feinberg was authority for the statement that "the Babe," when the papers were served, refused to consider them seriously.

On December 2, Ruth's attorney first appeared as counsel for the defendant. Then last February 24, after Ruth had gone south to join his club for the spring training, a complaint setting forth the charges made by Miss Dixon was filed with Mr. Bushnell.

Since then Mr. Feinberg obtained the removal of the case from New York county to King's county, where Barbara B. Escoe, formerly the girl's companion in the Riverside Drive apartment, was appointed her guardian ad litem for purposes of the damage action, Ruth's counsel has learned.

"Babe has told his wife all about the suit and the efforts made to get it without publicity," his counsel said tonight. "She agrees with him that he should compel Miss Dixon to come into court."

Mr. Feinberg said he would file the necessary papers tomorrow. Mr. Bushnell said he would file an answer just as soon as he could get Ruth's signature to it.

RUTH DENIES CHARGES OF GIRL.

New Orleans, March 13.—"It's blackmail; that's all I've got to say," was the only comment "Babe" Ruth, member of the New York American league baseball team, would make tonight when shown a New York dispatch stating that he had been made defendant in a $50,000 damage suit instituted by Miss Delores Dixon.

Ruth arrived here several days ago to train with the other members of his team. He is registered at a local hotel with Mrs. Ruth.

Kathryn Dixon at Grady in Critical Condition — Police Seek T. J. Graves.

Kathryn Dixon, 20, of 52 West Peachtree place, was believed to be dying at Grady hospital at an early hour this morning from the effects of nitrate of silver she had swallowed in an effort to end her own life, while police were searching for T. J. Graves, 307 North Jackson street, whom she accused of wronging her in a letter written before she swallowed the poison.

Police had been looking for Graves since Sunday, it developed at headquarters following Miss Dixon's attempted suicide. He had visited her apartment Sunday and Monday nights and beaten her severely, she had told police. Each time he escaped, police stated.

Prosecution under the Mann act is declared probable by officers who are investigating the case, if charges made by the girl are proved true. She charged that he brought her to Atlanta from Nashville two years ago and has lived with her at intervals since then and that she has used his name. He is married, according to the police, but is not living with his wife.

Miss Dixon is said to be prominently connected in Nashville, her father being a well-known physician. Her letter indicated that she had planned to return home at the time she wrote it.

Dr. James Roscoe Day, Syracuse Chancellor, Dies of Pneumonia

Atlantic City, N. J., March 13.—Dr. James Roscoe Day, chancellor emeritus of Syracuse university, died at Craig Hall here tonight of pneumonia.

Dr. Day, a national figure, noted as educator, leader of Methodism, author and publicist, contracted influenza at the seaside resort last Friday and broncho-pneumonia developed. At the bedside when the end came were Mrs. Day and their daughter, Miss Imogene Day.

Chicago Woman
GETS LIFE TERM
IN POISON MURDER

Chicago, March 13.—Mrs. Tillie Klimek, alleged co-partner with Mrs. Nellie Koulik in the feminine "arsenic trust," alleged to have murdered by poison more than a dozen friends, husbands and relatives, was found guilty of the murder of Frank Krupczek, her third husband, Tuesday night and sentenced to life imprisonment.

The jury was out one hour and thirty minutes. It took two ballots. In the first ballot Mrs. Klimek was found guilty; on the second the jury decided on a term of life imprisonment, although four jurors were said to have favored capital punishment.

Mrs. Klimek, a squat Polish woman, dressed in black, wore a stolid expression as she waited for the jury's return.

As the jury filed in with the verdict she darted two frightened glances first at the jurors, then at the judge. Then again her face became emotionless.

As the verdict was read, "Guilty," she lowered her eyes, but that was all. A moment later the judge had thanked the jury and Mrs. Klimek rose to her feet. She paced back and forth like a caged animal for several minutes, refusing to speak to her attorney or to newspaper men, until she was led away.

Other Murders Charged.
Tillie will go untried for the alleged murders of two other husbands, Frank Kowalski and Joseph Mitchell, as well as for the attempted murder of a fourth, John Klimek.

Krupczek's body was exhumed when the authorities found Klimek to be suffering from arsenic poisoning, and traces of the deadly poison were found in his corpse. Similar symptoms were found in the bodies of Kowalski and Mitchell, and in the remains of several victims of Mrs. Klimek or Mrs. Koulik.

Witnesses testified that while Frank lay dying Tillie had complained that he was slow in doing so and that she was paying big insurance on the while. Collection of insurance, the prosecution claimed, was the motive in all cases. Tillie had Frank's coffin all ready for him, it was claimed, and celebrated the event of his death by playing jazz music on a phonograph.

To this Tillie answered with a full denial and the claim that her husband had died of natural causes.

May Jail Lanier For Not Paying Alimony to Bride

First Payment Under Alimony Award, Due Tuesday, Was Not Paid.

Macon, Ga., March 13.—(Special.) Sidney Lanier, whose brief romance and wedded bliss with Mrs. Peggy Lewis Lanier terminated in an order from Judge H. A. Mathews directing Lanier to pay his wife $40 a month alimony, will be put in jail for contempt of court Wednesday if the plans of Oliver Hancock, attorney for Mrs. Lanier, do not go awry.

According to Mr. Hancock, who leaves Thursday for Wilcox county to try a case there, the initial payment of the $40 a month alimony ordered by Judge Mathews was to have been made today to Mr. Hancock in his office. Mr. Hancock said no such payment was made.

"I am not going to have any foolishness about this case," Mr. Hancock said. "Lanier was given two months to get started and accumulated $40 for the support of a wife that he should be supporting all the time. He has contributed nothing whatever toward her support."

At the hearing February 13, Judge Mathews warned Lanier that unless he paid the alimony at the stipulated time, the only recourse the court would have would be to jail him for contempt of court in not complying with the order.

Lanier and Miss Lewis were married in Atlanta early in November, and separated the next day. According to their announced plans, Lanier was to come to Macon to prepare for the coming of his bride, while Mrs. Lanier was to remain in Atlanta to collect her trousseau.

Something went wrong with their plans in the meantime, and they did not materialize. In a suit for $50,000 against Dr. Lanier, charging alienation of affections of her husband, Mrs. Lanier charged her father-in-law had forbidden her husband to live with her.

An appeal from Judge Mathews' temporary alimony award has been taken, but no bond for payment of alimony in case that appeal is lost has been made, and lawyers said the appeal under that circumstance did not supersede judgment of the court.

Lanier took a pauper's affidavit to cover cost of the appeal.

PROGRESSIVE BLOC OF 38 MEMBERS FORMED TUESDAY

Twenty-six Others Signify Their Intention of Joining—May Hold Balance of Power.

LA FOLLETTE LOOMS
AS LEADER OF BLOC

Wisconsin Senator Urges Fight on Alleged Control of Oil Industry By Standard Oil Company.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, March 13.—Two indications of the serious purposes with which the progressives will seek to exercise their balance of power in the two houses of the next congress have come to light simultaneously.

First, Senator La Follette announced on Tuesday that he will press for legislation in the next congress to break the grip which he asserts the Standard Oil interests have on gasoline prices.

Second, one of his leading supporters in the house, Representative Nelson, of Wisconsin, announced that progressives there are organizing to overthrow the rigid rules which enable the majority party to control business in a manner almost as arbitrary as that exercised by Speaker Cannon at the height of his power.

Revival of the trust issue and the attack on steam-roller methods in the house recall the progressive fight on the same two issues more than a decade ago which led ultimately to the split of the republican party and the rise of the insurgent progressives in 1912.

Oil Fight Urged.
It is Senator La Follette's hope that the progressives will unite for a fight on the alleged oil trust and carry it into the 1924 campaign if necessary. He is convinced that the automobile owners will demand legislation that will prevent fixing of gasoline prices. La Follette believes that the time for a general awakening to the menace of monopolies is near and that the question of oil and gasoline prices, which affect every family that rides in an automobile, may be the one that will arouse the slumbering consumer who pays the bills.

It is significant that while La Follette was issuing his second broadside against the large oil interests, his progressive colleagues in the house were announcing formation of their bloc. Thirty-eight congressmen are said to have pledged themselves and twenty-six others have signified an intention of joining. As the republican majority in the next house will number only about twenty votes, the progressives believe they will be successful in holding a balance of power. They also expect to keep at least ten members together in the senate, more than enough to wipe out the republican majority here also.

Raps Special Rules.
While the house bloc will interest itself in legislation to protect the public interest in coal, timber and water power and in revision of tax and transportation laws, it will first attempt to abolish the guaranteeing rules and the practice of packing important committees with so-called reactionaries.

"The adroit use of special rules to prevent amendments from being voted upon in the house in relation to legislative measures of the utmost importance to all free people, and the usual reprehensible practice of packing committees to secure special privileges or to suppress popular legislation, are obstacles in the way of recording the will of the people," Representative Nelson said in discussing the program of the progressive bloc. "We have had under consideration a modification of the rules so as to prevent or limit the abuse of bringing in special rules to prevent intelligent constructive legislation being considered by action of the house."

The senate has no such restrictions and, contrary to house procedure, any amendment can get a hearing and be voted upon.

"We can also insist that the steering committee be not so constituted as to prevent consideration of important legislation desired by a majority of the house," Representative Nelson said. Under existing rules, no measure can be considered unless the steering committee, controlled by the majority organization, consents.

La Follette, reiterating his charges that the Standard Oil companies fix prices and divide territory between them, declared that the motor car owners will demand remedial legislation in the next congress. He said such legislation could be enacted without injuring the legitimate industry.

Standard Oil officials, La Follette said, are attempting to divert attention from the monopoly issue in favor of ridiculing his prediction of dollar gasoline.

Morphine, cocaine and atropine said to be valued at $2,000, and identified as part of the $35,000 worth of narcotics stolen from the McRobert Drug company at 37 Luckie street Sunday night, was recovered at midnight Tuesday by Plainclothesmen John C. Davis and L. E. Shumate when they arrested Luther Gloer, aged 41, of the Campbellton road.

According to the officers, Gloer confessed that although he did not enter the wholesale drug house he was present when the theft occurred. He was held on a blanket charge of suspicion.

Gloer was arrested as he was walking along South Forsyth street in the vicinity of Mitchell street. He was carrying the drugs in a paper bag, the officers said.

Narcotics valued at approximately $15,000 had been recovered Monday night by Officers W. D. McGee and Harmon and restored to the McRobert Drug company. The drugs were found concealed in an old shed near McCall's crossing.

Captain T. O. Sturdivant and Lieutenant W. A. Chewing, of the plainclothes squad, are personally conducting the drug theft investigation.

Declares Britain Should Intervene In Ruhr Imbroglio

Labor Leader Suggests Plan for Settling Franco-German Differences.

BY PHILIP SNOWDEN.
Labor Leader in the British House of Commons.

London, March 13.—I mentioned in the last article the British labor party's solution of the reparations problem, and particularly its attitude on the Ruhr question.

A world conference should be held regardless of whether France herself will consent to participate.

It is impossible to predict the outcome of the French occupation in the Rhineland. Almost anything might happen.

The worst thing that could happen would be the complete surrender of the German people to the French demands. It is conceivable that this will happen; but it is impossible that the French could forever keep the people of the country in subjection. It cannot be done, with any people. The spirit of nationality or patriotism would rise, as it has always in the past, phoenix-like from the ashes of despair, and a new war would be the result.

Perhaps Germany, in the event of continued occupation, would collapse.

entirely, and bolshevism ensue—menacing the continent of Europe.

Thirdly, an economic agreement might be reached between the French and the German industrialists. I should not object to such an agreement if it were voluntary but in the present case it could only be effected under duress.

See No Gain.

So far the occupation of the Ruhr admittedly has gained nothing. It never will result in anything but trouble for Europe.

It is impossible to permit things to go on as they are. Great Britain should intervene, and mediate between France and Germany.

I believe that Great Britain should mediate alone if necessary; but possibly the co-operation of the United States should be obtained. American support would be of tremendous value. Nothing can be accomplished by waiting.

I know that in America, as in England, the government is not in favor of intervention at the present time. But if Great Britain took the initiative, and made a proposal for joint intervention by means of a world conference, it might be regarded by the United States as a sign that Europe was beginning to put her house in order, and bring about American co-operation. No mediation would be very successful without it.

I do not favor mediation by the council of the league of nations. Most members of the council who are not under French influence are not important enough to have any influence at all in such a question. At best, the council is not really representative.

Points to League.

Mediation by the league assembly would be better. If the assembly took up the question, at least the voice of all member nations would be heard. But even Germany, and Russia, and the United States are not members of the league, and their absence would be felt, perhaps vitally.

I should like to see Great Britain and the United States call a conference of all the nations, to mediate the Franco-German differences, and to settle the problem of reparations. It might not be a conference of politicians, but of economists. Economists would go directly to the heart of the trouble, and not, like politicians, be thinking always not of the ostensible effects in view, but of the effect upon world politics, and perhaps, even more important, upon their own national politics.

It is hard to see what the result of continued punitivity will be, what should Great Britain do, if we are to mediate?

We know that the Rhine population is becoming more and more restive. Days or weeks may bring an actual clash between the German population and the French troops. Then eventual war would be almost inevitable.

British troops are still on the Rhine. Should responsible persons here demand their immediate recall?

We must remember that British troops might be involved in any trouble that might break out, particularly now that France is using to some extent the railways running through the British zone.

British Zone is Oasis.

But we must remember too that the British zone in the Rhineland is the one oasis in the desert of desolation. The British zone is strategically important. In the interest of peace, it is not wise to withdraw the troops and thereby leave the entire Rhineland under the domination of France, with her increasingly ruthless occupation.

We cannot afford to await idly the turn of events. The world war began as a dispute between Austria and Serbia.

The British government, with the United States or alone, ought to call a conference of the nations to consider the reparations question and the occupation of the Ruhr.

It is said that France would refuse to accept mediation, or to participate in such a conference. Let her refuse. It is more than a French question, more than a European question. If France refuses, the conference would have to function without her. We have to mobilize the moral opinion of the world. If France would not join a world conference for the settlement of these problems, her purpose would be exposed in all its nakedness to the whole world. She would be morally isolated but I do not think it will come to that.

These are the labor party's views. We do not want war; God knows that, everybody knows it. We want to prevent war.

The only security that any nation can ever have is in not having the means and equipment to prosecute war, and by relying upon the moral sense of the world and the conviction of the world of its good intentions.

This is a moral question. Unless commercial policies are based upon moral principles they can never succeed. I do believe most profoundly that civilization can never be saved until all the acts of government, all political policies and all international relations are based upon the simple and eternal principles of the moral law.

I know that it is a hard task to love our enemies, and to do good to those who ill-use us; but it is a task that will have to be borne if the world is to be rescued from the evil of war, and it will have to be borne, if need be, as our forgotten dead bore it—to the very summit of Calvary.

for the financial stringency which led him to forge checks on the Chero-Cola company, the Wigly-Wigly company and other concerns, officers said he told them.

Extortionate rates of interest took his earnings and he found it impossible to reduce the amount of principal owed on various debts, he said.

Some months, Roberts stated, he had paid from $20 to $40 in interest alone. On one debt of $60, he said, he had been required to pay $18 monthly as interest.

Had it not been for his wife and four children, he said, he would have surrendered to the police and confessed weeks ago, he told the officers.

Officials of the Southern railway declared to officers Tuesday night that Roberts has been held in high esteem by the company.

Roberts said his father is superintendent for the Georgia railroad at Augusta.

"I realize that I have lost all, and it is up to me to start all over again," he told the arresting officers. "I want to serve my wife and show my wife that I can make good again. She is perfectly justified in mistaking me, but I will pray that she will stand by me."

KU KLUX KLAN STAGES PARADE AT DECATUR, GA.

Decatur, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)

Members of the local branch of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan staged a large and impressive parade through the principal streets of Decatur tonight. More than 500 klansmen were in the line.

The parade was headed by a drum and bugle corps, and the klansmen carried flaming red torches. All were dressed in the official white robes and helmets of the order.

It is understood that a large class was "naturalized" by the local klans following the parade. Klansmen from many nearby klans are understood to have been present for the "naturalization" ceremony.

DECATUR CITIZENS HOLD MASS MEET TO FAVOR BONDS

Decatur, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)

A mass meeting was held in the DeKalb county courthouse here tonight by the executive committee working for the passage of the $150,000 bond issue for schools and waterworks at an election to be held March 24.

The meeting was attended by several hundred leading citizens, and was presided over by Dr. W. S. Elkin, Jr., chairman of the campaign committee. Dr. Elkin stated his workers were meeting with no organized opposition, and that their only concern was in getting a majority of the registered voters to the polls on election day.

It was announced that Saturday would be the last day for citizens to register.

The meeting tonight was addressed by Charles D. McKinney, Mrs. E. H. Wilson, Mrs. J. C. Hoke and Mayor Scott Candler.

The Big American Novel of 1923

The Hawkeye by Herbert Quick

A story of pioneers, fighting for life on the prairies; of marauding Indians; of bandits and horse thieves and boodling politics; of brave women and beautiful girls.

The story of Fremont McConkey, the clodhopper poet; of Catherine Ashe and her sisters; of the Bushyagers, whose horses bore many brands; of Raws Upright and his gang of grafters.

It is adventure and romance and history.

The Hawkeye is better than Mr. Quick's "Vandemark's Folly," which the critics pronounced the best novel of 1922 after its serial appearance in THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL.

It is beyond question the greatest American novel that will be published this year.

Don't miss the first of six generous installments—read the March LADIES' HOME JOURNAL!

Throngs Attend Exposition In Dublin Despite Rain

Grand Style Revue by Beauty Queens and Dance Feature Second Day of Festival.

BY L. O. MOSELEY.

Dublin, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—Slight rainfall during early morning hours failed to dampen the enthusiasm of thousands who are attending Dublin's big industrial exposition this week in celebrating victory over the boll weevil. At 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the exposition doors opened and tremendous crowds passed into the huge building. The automobile parade, scheduled as the opening feature of the exposition, was postponed until Thursday, Kiwanis day. Three hundred delegates from sixteen Kiwanis clubs have made reservations for the day.

The important events of the second day's program were the grand style revue by the fourteen beauties and a big dance in the evening. Throughout the afternoon and long into the night tremendous throngs milled around the grounds, touching elbows with visitors from all sections of middle Georgia.

"The biggest week in the history of Dublin" is what everyone says. N. H. Nardner, of Nardner's Shows, co-operator with the exhibitor of commerce and the Kiwanis club, and whose mind first conceived the spring festival, said today: "I can hardly believe my own eyes. Huge crowds, marvelous feeling and the most magnificent spirit I ever knew. It is great to witness a spectacle of what Dublin has accomplished in throwing open her doors to the twelfth congressional district."

Capital of District. Dublin, for various reasons, has felt that it was the capital of the twelfth district for many years and this title has not been questioned. This is due more, perhaps, to the fact that Dublin has been the permanent seat of the twelfth district fair each year, than to its location, or size, or advantages over other cities of the district. Appreciating this, the city and county have opened wide the doors and bid all people to enter into the spirit of the festival of the gala week.

The unusual period of the year for an exposition of the kind in full swing in Dublin, inasmuch as fairs and events of this nature come almost always in the fall of the year, has prompted the question: "Why such an exposition in the spring?" President E. G. Simmons, of the chamber of commerce, has summed up the reply in the following short but very expressive statement:

"We have gotten back to prosperity again—the stable, sure, worthwhile kind; we have broke bread with the boll weevil and are working with the bug in accomplishing the final details of the transformation in Laurens county. The weevil isn't worrying us and we are not going to worry ourselves about him. Hence, the idea of observing a special week of celebration in order that the people might know that Laurens county is back to normal; that we are happy and prosperous. It was only natural that we should invite our neighboring counties to participate in the grand jubilee." So, Mr. Simmons' statement explains the special week in which all forces and factors in the district have united in making a epoch-making affair in the history of middle Georgia.

Walker to Speak. Governor-elect Clifford Walker arrived today from his home in Monroe and will be the guest of the Dublin Kiwanis club for two days. Frank Oliver, of Savannah, governor of Kiwanis, for Georgia, will arrive Wednesday. These two prominent visitors will deliver addresses on Thursday, that day being set aside as "Kiwanis Day."

FOREMOST AMERICAN PIANISTE WILL PLAY THE STEINWAY AT THE AUDITORIUM (TONIGHT) MAR. 14TH

Dear Mr. Steinway: After all that has been said in praise of the Steinway pianos, it seems almost useless to add a single voice to the great chorus, and yet my enthusiasm for these marvelous instruments is so great that I feel the desire to express it. The power, the delicacy, the durability, the splendid action, and, above all, the wonderful singing tone of the Steinway piano remains unequaled.

This great instrument is truly the work of genius, and there is no piano in the world like it. The attainment of the highest ideals in cantilene and tone-color, in the orchestral effects called for in the modern school of composition, and the perfect response to every wish and thought of the artist are made possible on the Steinway, and only on the Steinway. Fortunate indeed are those who play these wonderful instruments on the concert platform, as well as those who have them in their homes.

Always faithfully yours,

put into operation and has paid, big dividends each month; a co-operative grain elevator and mills was erected and pays Chicago prices for grain—and many other lesser institutions for community building were commissioned and are daily contributors to Laurens county's progress.

The brief summary is, therefore, that Laurens county is "back on its feet," and to stay. The foundation for prosperity and progress has been carefully, if hastily, constructed and is permanent, it is evident. So, the boll weevil is the "least of worries" to Laurens county farmers. In celebration of all this transformation, Dublin and Laurens county are "at home" to their friends for this entire week and it is an event that will be made an annual one, bigger and better, it is believed, as the years come and go.

CHILD WELFARE LAWS PROPOSED FOR STATE

Speakers at Conference Here Outline Program of Protective Legislation.

A program of child welfare legislation was outlined at a meeting of the southern regional child welfare conference held here Tuesday, by William Hodson, chief of the division of child welfare legislation of the Russell Sage foundation. Members of the Georgia Children's Code commission were present, and according to a statement given out Tuesday night they will advocate such legislation for Georgia.

J. Prentice Murphy spoke on child welfare legislation in Pennsylvania; Frank Bayne spoke on legislation in Virginia, and Dr. C. C. Carstens, of the Child Welfare League of America, discussed legislation for children's welfare from a national standpoint. Dr. Carstens declared that "instead of this legislation for better divorce laws, we had better concern ourselves with better legislation for marriage."

The legislative program outlined for child welfare by Mr. Hodson follows:

1. Definition of crimes against children, such as abandonment, desertion, neglect, abuse, sex crimes.
2. Prohibition or regulation of environmental factors which affect children's health and moral well-being of the child, such as pool rooms, dance halls, places where liquor and tobacco are sold.
3. Establishment of judicial agencies for the care of juvenile delinquents and for protection of the child, together with a re-organization of criminal law with reference to juvenile delinquency.
4. Development of relief for dependent children through public aid to mothers.
5. Creation of public agencies of state-wide and local character to protect and support, such as state and county child welfare boards, and in the field of health and recreation, the provisions of the Howard-Towner bill, together with the support of state legislation and other measures designed to provide proper recreational facilities.
6. Regulation, through public agencies, of all agencies of a private character doing a child-caring work, such as orphanages, boarding homes, child placing agencies, maternity hospitals.
7. Expression in law of what may be regarded as the individual's social responsibilities with reference to general social interests where children are concerned, such as child labor, child attendance, minimum wage, the spread of communicable diseases, and the problem of the mental defective.

SATAN IS BEAUTIFUL IS BOOTH'S OPINION

Satan is not the hideous, eleven-footed, bat-winged, snake-tailed monster that many suppose. Evangelist Booth declared Tuesday night at Taft hall.

"The scriptures picture him as a beautiful angel of light," he said. "He was lifted up because of his beauty. He is the originator of sin. A third part of the angels of glory fell with him in his rebellion against Heaven. The controversy that began in Heaven was extended to this world, where the conflict continues between Christ and Satan."

"Ministration of Holy Angels" will be Booth's theme at Cable hall Wednesday night.

FRANCE PERILS PEACE HARDWICK BELIEVES

In replying to a questionnaire sent out by a New York newspaper, as to views on the Franco-German situation, Governor Hardwick of New Jersey wired as follows: "Every effort should be made to adjust, on a fair basis, the question of reparations by Germany, and any arbitrary conduct on the part of France or any other nation is likely to endanger the peace of the world. America's principal duty is to stay out of the row."

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair By Washing It

When you wash your child's hair be careful what you use. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulisified coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulisified in a cup of glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water, and rub the Mulisified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly. It is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Mulisified coconut oil shampoo at any drug store, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulisified—fady's

CHARGE KIDNAPING TO TRIO IN DUBLIN

Thirteen-Year-Old Reba Meldrim, of Savannah, and 40-Year-Old Groom Wed in Metter.

Dublin, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—Two men, giving their names as John F. and W. H. Martin, and Blanche Bolter, a woman, were arrested here today on warrants from the municipal court of Savannah and are held on charges of kidnaping Reba Meldrim, daughter of John Meldrim, of Savannah, and who is said to be only thirteen years of age. The girl asked to remain "with the crowd" and also was lodged in a cell, but not under arrest. The party was nabbed by local officers as they prepared to enter a small show on the exposition grounds here.

John F. Martin, the elder of the two men, tall, slim, and apparently about 40 years old, stated that he and Reba were married in Metter, Ga., county, yesterday. Fearing, however, that the minister would decline to marry the two, the Bolter woman stood with the party and Reba stood behind her, making it appear that Martin and the Bolter woman were being married. When hands were joined Martin took the hand of Reba, concealing this from the view of the minister with his hat, according to Martin's statement when interviewed. The men and woman deny kidnaping Reba and stated she came away of her own volition, alleging that Reba's father was unduly severe in punishing her and that Reba's home was very unhappy. Reba, black-eyed and pretty, declined to discuss the matter. She will be returned to her father and the two men and woman will be turned over to Savannah officers en route here.

SAVANNAH OFFICERS ARE SENT FOR TRIO

Savannah, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—A member of the Chatham county police force left this afternoon for Dublin to bring back to Savannah W. H. Martin, 40 years old, accused of kidnaping Reba Meldrim, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Meldrim, of this city. The case against the trio is the first of its kind in a romance which he and Miss Reba Meldrim, 13 years and two months of age, figured several days ago.

The couple obtained a marriage license from the city clerk here, and were subsequently married at Metter by Rev. W. B. Kitchens. It is illegal to marry a girl in Georgia who is under 14 years of age. At the request of Walter C. Hartridge, the solicitor-general, Martin was arrested by the Laurens county authorities this morning and charges incorporated in a warrant sworn out several days ago in the municipal court before Judge Henry will, it is announced from the solicitor-general's office, be pressed.

The bride, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Meldrim, of 523 Henry street, west, left home a week ago today for the Henry Street school, in which she was a pupil in the sixth grade. She disappeared and her parents reported the matter to the police for investigation. Later they received a letter written from Dover in which the girl stated she had eloped with Walter H. Martin, 40 years of age, and was going to marry him. The license subsequently was returned to the ordinary's office here showing the ceremony had been duly performed.

Martin, the groom, had occupied a flat in the same house with his wife's people. Her school books were later found at the stables of the ice company, where Martin had been working.

Mr. Meldrim announced his intention of having the marriage annulled. Following the announcement that the girl had left the city with Martin, her father swore out a warrant charging kidnaping against W. H. Martin, the groom; Blanche Martin and John P. Martin, who is declared by court house officials to be the two other defendants cannot be located. It was announced in a telegram received from the sheriff of Laurens county at Dublin this morning that Martin and his bride are now connected with a carnival company which is located temporarily at Dublin.

The boy was examining the pistol and showing it to a private name when it went off. He was near his home at the time and medical aid was quickly summoned. After administering first aid treatment, the physicians carried the boy to a hospital in Greenville, where an x-ray of the wounded leg will be made.

WANAMAKER GIVES VERSION OF SPLIT

Says Hutchison Action Will Not Affect American Cotton Association's Program of Service.

In a statement issued Tuesday night, J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton Association, explains why his organization recently severed connections with Dr. Miller Reese Hutchison, of New York, who had previously been appointed directing manager of the department for scientific research for boll weevil control.

He also tells how his organization has been served with notice that it is expected to pay the sum of $12,748.90 "to defray expenses which have been incurred."

Dr. Hutchison, who was named head of the national campaign for boll weevil control at a meeting in Atlanta, in a recent statement declared that the work of the organization would proceed despite the break with the American Cotton association.

Declaring that Dr. Hutchison was appointed upon the strength of his own representations, and that the appointment would never have been made had the association made a preliminary investigation, President Wannamaker charges that the manner in which Dr. Hutchison has abused his appointment left no other course open except to insist upon a cancellation of same.

Hutchison Conference.

The statement says that the recent boll weevil conference held in Atlanta was called at the suggestion of Dr. Hutchison, who had proposed a nationwide campaign to raise $250,000 for expense money in carrying on the warfare against the weevil. It is stated that this conference was given publicity and entirely handled by agents of Dr. Hutchison, using the name of the American Cotton association on their letter heads, but that when it actually convened, Dr. Hutchison took charge and ignored the wishes of the association's delegates in running the meetings.

The story is told how checks were subscribed to the American Cotton association at this time, totaling $35,321, and were given to Dr. Hutchison on the platform. Following the disavowal of the method of conducting the future work, however, Mr. Wannamaker refused to endorse these checks over to the new corporation, known as the National Campaign for Boll Weevil Control, which had been organized by Dr. Hutchison at the convention meetings, and which were incorporated under the laws of Tennessee.

Checks Were Returned.

Upon this refusal, states Mr. Wannamaker, Dr. Hutchison agreed to confer with him after the conclusion of the conference, at which time the checks were returned to Mr. Wannamaker.

Asserting that the cotton association is willing to co-operate with any individual or organization which is sincerely seeking for a solution of the weevil problem, and that it is even willing to sink its own identity if it appears best for the cause that it do so, Mr. Wannamaker says, however, that the appointment of Dr. Hutchison was "one of the colossal jokes of the age."

"I regret," continues Mr. Wannamaker, "that I cannot take the public into my full confidence. The half has not been told. There is inside information. This cancellation will stand. Dr. Hutchison's place will be filled by a suitable appointee and as a result of the co-operation we are receiving from every section of the nation, which is sincerely and unselfishly interested in the solution of this problem, the work of this association, in which we have been engaged Sylacauga, Ala.—"I wish the world to know that I say Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is worth its weight in gold. My wife was down and out with feminine trouble. She was advised to try this medicine, so she did, and it did her more good than all the other medicines she ever took. I am doing this in the hope that this medicine may help others as it did my wife."—R. M. Jacobs.

Your health is the most valuable asset you have. You should procure this Prescription of Dr. Pierce's from your druggist, in tablets or liquid, or write Dr. Pierce, President Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free medical advice.—(adv.)

Every druggist in this country is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of Altheric, the sure cure of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinges of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Altheric has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished. The most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and chronic and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester, N. ### Association Has Support.

"The educational and scientific work will be broadened and pushed as never before. We have the implicit confidence and co-operation of the farmer and the leading business interests, not only of the south, but from various sections of the nation, who realize as never before that they have the fullest co-operation and assistance of the various agricultural organizations. We are not under what name the work is conducted. We are only concerned in results and realizing that such results can only be obtained by following this course we are determined to pursue it, regardless of the world, the flesh and the devil."

President Wannamaker charges Dr. Hutchison with an effort to destroy the American Cotton association and asserts that any such move is doomed to failure.

Telling something of the plans of the association for the coming year, Mr. Wannamaker's statement continues:

Two thousand demonstration farms will be operated under practical, experienced farmers, these demonstration farms being conducted in every cotton growing county in America."

GOVERNMENT NOT TO AID ASSOCIATION.

New York, March 13.—(Special.) Emphatic repudiation has been made by the United States department of agriculture of the general impression that funds collected by the American Cotton association were to be utilized with the co-operation of, or under the direction of government authority, in carrying on fight against the boll weevil.

This information was contained in a letter received in this city today by Dr. Miller Reese Hutchison, president and managing director of the national campaign for boll weevil control, from C. W. Pugsley, acting secretary of agriculture. This letter deals only with funds solicited by the American Cotton association, President Harding himself having pledged to Dr. Hutchison personally full government co-operation in the program as set forth by the campaign for boll weevil control.

"I find that there is no agreement with the American Cotton association involving the co-operative use of any department or association's funds." Acting Secretary Pugsley wrote. "I find further that there was no formal co-operation between this department and the American Cotton association in regard to the Atlanta meeting. Dr. Hunter, an employee of the department, was present at the meeting, at your request, to explain the history of the department's investigation of the weevil." It was explained by Mr. Pugsley that he was acting for Secretary Wallace, who had left Washington. Still further denial of government co-operation in the American Cotton association's solicitation for funds is disclosed in today's edition of the New York Journal of Commerce. In a dispatch from its Washington correspondent this article follows:

"Washington, March 11.—Funds collected on the New York cotton exchange, and from other cotton interests to be used in the nationwide fight against the boll weevil will not be expended by the department of agriculture or under its directions."

"This statement, which directly refutes representations made by solicitors, who it is understood have collected about $75,000 from members of the New York Cotton exchange and who are still soliciting contributions from this source, is made by Dr. J. F. Webb, acting chief in charge of southern field crop-insect investigations, United States department of agriculture."

"Dr. Webb said that an 'informal understanding' had been reached with Dr. Miller Reese Hutchison before his split with the American Cotton association to the effect that department of agriculture would co-operate with him in his campaign. The department has not been approached by any other representative of the American Cotton association, he said, and the understanding with Dr. Hutchison was 'informal' and was more of an indicative nature than a positive agreement."

Dr. Webb indicated, however, in an interview with representative of the Journal of Commerce, that the department thinks very highly of Dr. Hutchison and will continue to co-operate with him in spite of the severance of his connection with the American Cotton association.

"Dr. Webb stated that in so far as he knew any funds that were collected by Dr. Hutchison were solicited on the basis that they were to be used by Dr. Hutchison as head of the organization of which he was then managing director. Solicitation by the American Cotton association since the split with Dr. Hutchison could not truthfully be collected on the basis that the department of agriculture is to expend or direct the expenditure of the funds in the boll weevil campaign, it was made plain, because at the present time the department has no official, unofficial, informal, or any other understanding with this association with respect to boll weevil control."

SACCO WEAKENS AS HE CONTINUES HUNGER STRIKE

Dedham, Mass., March 13.—Nicola Sacco complained of pains in his head and showed signs of weakness tonight as he ended the twenty-seventh day of his hunger strike in the Norfolk county jail here as protest against delays in the hearing of motions for a new trial for himself and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, both of whom were convicted of murder in 1921.

Sacco's temperature was subnormal and his blood pressure very low, Dr. A. M. Worthington, jail physician, reported. His pulse was normal. Dr. Worthington said he expected Sacco would hold out until the hearing of motions for a new trial Friday, but in the event of an unfavorable decision, would quickly collapse owing to his debilitated condition.

Man Who Escaped Macon County Jail Still at Liberty

Montezuma, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—John H. Parker, a white man charged with a felony, who escaped Friday night from the county jail at Oglethorpe, is still at liberty. Parker tried open a window with an iron nail from his cot and let himself down with a blanket tied to the window.

He had been in jail ten days and was waiting trial at the spring term of the superior court, which convenes the second Monday in May.

OWSLEY IS GUEST OF ATLANTA TODAY

movement to make him national commander.

Citizens Join Welcome.

Besides the legionnaires mentioned, a number of prominent Atlantans will be on hand at the station to greet the commander of the American service men's organization. About 30 automobiles, some of them decorated, will take part in the parade and the band of post No. 1, equipped with new instruments and new uniforms, will lead the parade.

C. V. Hohenstein, secretary of the retail merchants' association, has requested that all business men along Mitchell street from the Terminal station to Whitehall decorate for this occasion. The line of march will be straight through the city from Mitchell and Whitehall to Peachtree and to Harris, where the parade will disband.

Commander Owsley's limited time in the city has been mapped out by committees of posts No. 1 and No. 78 so that the smiling, fighting preacher of patriotism will have a busy day before him.

Following the parade a luncheon will be given in his honor at the Kimball house. Mayor Walter A. Sims will deliver an address of welcome and Commander Owsley will make a short response. At 2 o'clock, according to the program, Colonel Owsley will visit Base Hospital No. 48, there to pay his respects to wounded veterans who are being cared for by the government.

Tech Review for Owsley.

A regimental parade and review of the Georgia Tech regiment, R. O. T. C., is scheduled for 4:10 in the afternoon on Grant field. The Tech band will be on hand and lead the parade, and every one of the 1,500 cadets at Tech have been instructed to be on hand in uniform.

Following review of Tech regiment, Colonel Owsley will have dinner at the Georgian Terrace with Commander B. P. Gambrell, of Post No. 1, and Evan P. Howell, of Post No. 78, and other leading legionnaires.

A mass meeting is scheduled for 8 o'clock at the Baptist Tabernacle, and here Colonel Owsley will have an introduction to the public. Eugene R. Black, State Commander, Cohen and Colonel Owsley will deliver addresses.

Colonel Owsley is expected to give Atlantans a treat in the way of information concerning the legion, an interpretation of his views on Americanism and the tasks which are before the legion as a body and before legionnaires as individuals. He is an accomplished orator, and is known from coast to coast as one of the most fearless speakers on the subject of Americanism and against radicalism.

Dance for Visitor.

With the conclusion of the mass meeting the commander and his party will go to Segalios hall, where a dance is to be given in his honor. The dance was formerly scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock, but the time has been changed to 11:30, in order to give Commander Owsley ample time to complete his address at the Tabernacle.

That the visit of Colonel Owsley will be of great benefit to Atlanta legionnaires is conceded by the leaders, and the efforts of the legion as a state organization to continue this year the work which resulted in its capturing so many honors at the last national convention, are expected to receive a material boost through the exercises planned for Wednesday.

Georgia took first honors on a number of counts at the convention in New Orleans, among which was the Hanford McKnight trophy for greatest increase in members during the period. The rifle team took honors, and first honors in the tennis match

TEXTILE EXECUTIVES HOLD MEETING HERE

Jennings, Hames, Harris,
Brittain and Phillip Are Speakers at Tech.

A one-day meeting was held at the Georgia School of Technology yesterday by the textile operating executives of Georgia, an organization composed of the operating heads of the Georgia textile mills and mill departments.

The purpose of the meeting was an informal discussion of technical subjects relating to the carding and spinning departments, the preparatory divisions in manufacturing yarn and cloth. Two sessions, one opening at 10 a. m. and the other at 2:30 p. m., with a "Dutch" luncheon at 1 o'clock, constituted the program of the meeting.

R. W. Jennings, general superintendent of the Lanett cotton mill at West Point, general chairman of the organization, presided at the sessions. The practical discussion was conducted by J. W. Hames, superintendent of the Exposition cotton mills, Atlanta, and chairman of the carding-spinning division of the organization. A representative number of Georgia's textile operating executives were present and took part in the discussion.

At the luncheon in the dining room of Tech, George S. Harris, president of the Exposition cotton mills, Atlanta, pledged the co-operation and interest of the Cotton Manufacturers' association in plans for meetings of this nature.

Mr. Jennings, general chairman, responded to Mr. Harris' address of welcome. Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology, offered the facilities of the A. French Textile school, the textile department of Georgia Tech in the furtherance of their efforts along experimental and research lines.

Members of the Georgia Tech Madolin club furnished music during the luncheon. Robert W. Phillip, associate editor of Cotton, Atlanta, who is

Since the consolidation of the Lowry National bank and the Trust Company of Georgia, which became effective January 2, the business of the new institution has shown a substantial increase, according to the statement of condition submitted at this meeting.

"Atlanta has long needed a strong bank which combined under one roof all the various specialized financial services that are offered separately by commercial banks, savings banks, and trust companies," said an officer of the bank.

As a result of the merger, the Lowry Bank and Trust company of Georgia has an invested capital of over $7,000,000, the largest of any bank in the south.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN SUCCESS INDICATED

Prize List for School Children Being Prepared—Ordinances Reviewed.

BY HUBERT F. LEE.

That the clean-up and paint-up campaign this year, which starts Thursday, will be an overwhelming success is evident from the great number of people who have promised to take a personal interest and help.

Mrs. H. M. Striplin, chairman of prizes committee, is now preparing a list of prizes to be offered for essays and other phases of the work to be done by the school children. Professor W. A. Sutton, executive committee member, has offered to issue instructions to all teachers regarding the campaign and to enlist their support.

Efforts will be made to rid Atlanta of the smoke nuisance that is now costing thousands of dollars to individuals and downtown department stores.

Every city ordinance pertaining to the campaign will be dug up and an appeal will be made to observe them.

A resolution of the local paint dealers and master painters, held in the City club dining room Monday evening, that each man in the paint business would paint his own store and home was unanimously passed. They decided to practice what they preach.

A number of stunts will be pulled off during the campaign, which is scheduled to last until April. Parades, washing Grady monument by the business men's division of the chamber of commerce, and other things will be featured.

Credit Men Hear Sutton's Address On School Needs

Atlanta's duty to her schools, that they be kept up to the modern standards which are being attained by the city in her other lines of activity, was stressed Tuesday night in the address of Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, before the Atlanta Association of Credit men.

Mr. Sutton urged that, while vast plans were being made for Atlanta's business and industrial expansion, the schools must also be remembered and "kept in step" with the rest of the city.

The meeting was presided over by H. E. Moody, president, and plans were discussed for the national convention of credit men, which takes place here in June. Vocal selections by C. J. Aldred, accompanied by P. L. Hubbard, and by Paul Crutchfield.

SPRING STREET

AN OPPORTUNITY of unusual proportions is offered investors of normal means in the subdivision of an entire city block of property bounded by SPRING STREET—PINE STREET—MERRITTS AVENUE AND SAUL STREET.

BALTIMORE BLOCK, a 70-foot street facing this property, will be extended through the block, affording a subdivision of active business property.

BUSINESS LOTS, having important two and three street frontages, will be offered in various sizes in order that this opportunity may be within the financial reach of all classes of investors.

PURCHASERS OF SPRING ST. property at proper prices have, in our opinion, big odds in their favor for a profitable investment.

Emerald Cut Crystal White Diamonds

Emerald cut diamonds are generally square or rectangular in shape, smooth table tops; that is, without facets.

Perfect Crystal White or Blue White stones of this kind are rare. We are fortunate in having a good assortment of fancy cut stones.

The natural beauty of stones of this kind is intensified by setting them in mountings of hard platinum in designs made to conform to the shape of the stones. Small calibre cut sapphires and small cut diamonds studied in the mountings, add greatly to their attractiveness.

For thirty-six years we have been headquarters for Diamonds of Quality.

Noted Pianist Will Play In Concert This Evening

Olga Samoroff, the noted American pianist, who will play in concert Wednesday evening at the Auditorium as the last feature this season of the Atlanta Music club's civic series.

One of the musical treats of the season awaits Atlanta music lovers in the recital tonight at the Auditorium by Olga Samoroff, America's greatest woman pianist, who ranks high up with the foremost artists of the world.

Mme. Samoroff has not only achieved a monumental task that no other woman pianist has undertaken, in interpreting from memory the 32 sonatas of Beethoven in eight consecutive evenings, but she possesses a mastery technique that few of her sex can equal, and plays equally as well the works of all of the greatest masters.

Her program for tonight is rich in variety of selections and is calculated to delight the most exacting type of musician, as well as others more easily pleased.

She will play compositions of Chopin, Schumann, Brahms, Rachmaninoff, Cyril Scott, and others of the 19th and 20th centuries.

The recital sale program, satisfactorily during Tuesday night, the Atlanta Music club, and it is anticipated today will bring a heavier sale, as the inclement weather of Tuesday undoubtedly kept many away from the recital. It was to secure their seats early.

The price of tickets is $1.50 and $1. There are still many good seats available, but the outlook is for a rapid sale today, with a record attendance for the last of the civic series for this season, which has been one of the most brilliant ever arranged by the Atlanta Music club.

Yarab Temple held a ceremonial session in the Auditorium last night at which the class elected to membership at the business meeting Monday was introduced to the hot and chilly season of the desert to the Holy City of Mecca. Having arrived there weary and footsore but happy in spirit, the class was elevated to the rank of nobles of the Mystic shrine and the secret and sublime word of the faithful was entrusted to the keeping of its members.

This will be the last ceremonial session of Yarab Temple until about the middle of May and just prior to the visit to Atlanta of some 25,000 nobles and ladies on their way to or from the annual council meeting in Washington.

It is to raise money to entertain these visitors that Yarab Temple is staging an all-week indoor hippodrome circus in the Auditorium the first performance being Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. General admission will be 50 cents, and children, under 12 years, will be admitted to matinee performances for 25 cents, saving the same as adults for evening performances.

Fifteen big circus acts will be given and six clowns will furnish the merriment.

UNDERTAKERS' TAXES HELD CONSTITUTIONAL

In reversing the case of W. S. Richardson, tax collector for Fulton county, against Barclay & Brandon, et al. from Fulton superior court, the Georgia supreme court Tuesday held that the act which taxes undertakers on a scale according to the population of the city in which their business is located, is constitutional. It was held that Judge Bell erred in overruling the demurrer in the suit.

POLICE CERTIORARI HEARING IS ENDED

Depositions of Committeemen Will Be Used in Hearing Before Judge
Bell Thursday Morning.

After Councilman W. Garland Cooper, member of the police committee, had been questioned by Attorney George C. Spence, counsel for Chief of Police James L. Beavers, the commissioner's hearing of the certiorari proceedings brought by Chief Beavers against the police committee was adjourned early Tuesday afternoon.

Depositions taken at the commissioner's hearing are expected to play an important part in the opening hearing on the Beavers litigation set for 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning in Judge George L. Bell's division of Fulton superior court.

Substantially the same questions previously asked members of the police committee with reference to their plans to replace Chief Beavers were propounded by Attorney Spence to Councilman Cooper.

According to Mr. Cooper he concurs in the charges of inefficiency on which the committee seeks to try the chief.

Councilman Cooper was the final witness examined by Attorney Spence. Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, chairman of the police committee, and Councilman Fred Woodall, vice chairman, who waited outside Judge Bell's courtroom under subpoena, were not called to the witness chair. They expect to be called to the stand Thursday at the public hearing. The commissioner's hearing was completed early Tuesday afternoon.

The first witness Tuesday was Ed H. Inman, former police commissioner, at whose residence a dinner was given in January, at which Major A. L. Pendleton, Jr., commandant at Georgia Tech, was introduced to Mayor Sims, and the police committee. Mr. Inman testified that Major Pendleton declined to enter into negotiations with the committee for the place of police department head because the position did not afford ample remuneration.

Three local newspapermen were credentialed as to statements made by members of the police committee.

which would indicate that it was the intention of the committee to oust Chief Beavers. It was testified that the members had frequently indicated that Beavers would be replaced, and that they had been widely quoted to that effect.

Attorney Spence will fight the effort of the police committee to try Chief Beavers for incompetency on the ground that the committee has already agreed that the chief is inefficient and is therefore disqualified to give him a fair trial.

Half Loaded Cars Increase Costs

The illustration above tells a story which should interest every reader of this newspaper, particularly every shipper of freight. It pictures a condition brought about through no fault of the railroads, but one which affects the business stability and growth of the entire nation.

Latest available figures show a shortage of 179,320 freight cars,—yet, if car-load shippers would load just 10% more freight in each car, such a husbanding of equipment would release more than 200,000 cars, with an attendant relief for every industry now suffering for transportation.

Statistics furnished by the Car Service Division of American Railroads have estimated that merchandise to the value of $1,200,000,000 is in transit each day, and that a little more time on the part of shippers given to the prompt loading and unloading of cars, could, by saving just one day in the aggregate, effect an economy of $185,000,000 annually, in interest.

The railroads are trying to bring about improvements in their handling of freight by the purchase of new cars, (the Louisville & Nashville Railroad has recently contracted for 11,000 new box cars and coal cars) but the shipping public must help the situation by better and quicker loading of cars, and prompt unloading when the railroads deliver cars to their team tracks.

Every time the sun sets the Louisville & Nashville Railroad has spent, that day, $272,236.00, in the maintenance and operation of its freight and passenger service.

PIONEER GIVES TANLAC CREDIT FOR RECOVERY

Old and Respected Citizen of Marietta Declares It Restored Him Fully From Rheumatism and Other Troubles.

People getting up in years who suffer from indigestion, poor appetite, aches and pains and a feeling of general lassitude are apt to think their condition all due to advanced age. When, in truth, their ailments are no different from the troubles suffered by thousands of younger people and will just as readily yield to the right kind of treatment.

A good medicine and I am sure it will help anyone suffering like I did. It is the only thing that has kept me well and able to work.

"For five or six years I suffered terribly with indigestion and a disordered condition of my bladder. After eating I often was in misery because my food disagreed with me; the pains in my stomach were so awful they doubled me up, and my bladder was so inactive it caused me a great deal of worry and suffering. My strength and energy were down to the vanishing point, and it was more than I could do to drag myself down to work.

"I reached the point where I didn't know where to turn for relief, until I read some statements in the papers where other people had been restored by Tanlac and I decided to try the treatment. In all my seventy-four years that is the best decision I ever made. Because today I am entirely rid of all my long-standing troubles, always feel strong and full of energy and am on the job every day. I don't believe I could have kept going if it hadn't been for Tanlac, and I am more than glad to add my endorsement."

The accident occurred on Main street, in East Point. The suit was filed through Attorneys Carl N. and Frank Guess.

Dismuke, Sick, Declares Faith In Accused Aide

Operation Ordered for Prohibition Director—Will Support W. H. Hahr.

Fred D. Dismuke, prohibition director for Georgia, will undergo a minor operation Wednesday morning. It was announced from his office in the Federal building Tuesday. He has been ill for several weeks, suffering from colds and bronchial trouble. He went to the hospital about 10 days ago, and Tuesday it was announced that his physician had advised an operation.

Dismuke, though ill and away from his offices during the recent developments in which two of his men were brought into unfavorable public notice, refused to worry about the state of affairs, and maintains that the record of his forces in Georgia shows its efficiency.

W. H. Hahr, assistant director, was temporarily suspended on order from Washington, and J. W. Griffin, group head of south Georgia forces, was indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of "padding" his expense account. Details of the suspension of Hahr have not been made public. Dismuke expressed confidence in his assistant, and stated that a real case would have to be made out before he would withdraw his support in the present wrangle.

KING-BLACKBURN IS SELLING STOCK OF PIGGLY WIGGLY

Piggly Wiggly, one of the largest grocery store chains in the world, is now offering for the first time a limited number of shares of stock to the general public at $55 the share.

This company is applying its novel and patented method of merchandising to a new chain of novelty stores handling general merchandise. This venture has proven successful and profitable.

Piggly Wiggly stores last year did a business of more than $60,000,000. The stock is at present paying dividends at the rate of 7 1/2 per cent on the offering price. At the present rate of business a dividend increase may be expected next year.

The stock of the Piggly Wiggly corporation is being offered the public by King-Blackburn company, investment security dealers, 304 Candler building, Atlanta, Ga.

The purpose outlined by Clarence Saunders, head of the Piggly Wiggly system, in selling stock to small investors is to break the hold of Wall street brokers. While the stock exchanges are offering the Piggly Wiggly stock at $70 a share, Mr. Saunders has started his campaign to sell 20,000 new stockholders at $55 the share and the campaign is succeeding in a big way, Mr. Saunders says.

VAUGHT ADDRESSES LIONS IN ATLANTA

Tribute to Grady By Club President in Telling Georgia's Part in Building Civilization.

The first official visit to Atlanta of the international president of the Lions' club, Ed S. Vaught, of Oklahoma City, was celebrated Tuesday at the regular weekly luncheon of Atlanta Lions' at the Chamber of Commerce cafe.

Mr. Vaught made the principal address, discussing mainly the principles of Lionism and telling of its work in the country. He stated that while the organization was only six years old and two years ago had only 200 clubs established, today this number had grown to 650 clubs with a membership of 35,000. "Five years from today no organization, national or international will boast of a larger membership than the Lions," he declared.

During his speech Mr. Vaught touched upon the part Georgia has played in building a nation, making special reference to Henry W. Grady, whose words he declared to be a part of the institution of America and the "spirit of whose addresses will live as long as a free country exists." He also referred to Benjamin Harvey Hill as an orator of unsurpassed eloquence, and Ty Cobb as being the cleanest man in baseball.

Reverting to the aims of Lionism, he declared, "We must build manhood in the community and make people understand that the rugged youth who walks the streets today may be a captain of industry tomorrow, if he is given a chance."

"If we will show the boys and girls of this country that we believe in them," he continued, "we will in time show the world a civilization beyond the dreams of man, and the south, north and west will blossom as a rose."

E. W. Rosenthal, of Savannah, district governor, made the initial address of the occasion, telling of the activities of the Savannah Lions. Others who spoke were Roland Neal, of Ocean; W. H. Beckwith, deputy governor, of Albany, Ga.; John Kornegay, of Columbia, S. C.; and W. W. Bennett, of Tifton.

Dean Thomas H. Johnson made a short address of welcome. J. R. Regan, president of the Atlanta Lions, presided.

TIME IS SHORT IN SPECIAL PRIZE OFFER

just as hard; and if they work harder than you, they will probably succeed where you will fail.

"Extend your campaign to cover neighboring unrepresented towns and rural sections. See each and every one of your friends who have given you short-term subscriptions, and explain how vital they can assist you in this crisis by extending their subscriptions. Use your head; get subscriptions and get every one you possibly can."

To Count Heavily. Each and every subscription will count heavily in the final decision. It was explained, both in the race for the special Buick prize and in the campaign for the original award list of eight high-priced, beautiful capital automobile awards, eight handsome district auto prizes and 24 big cash awards.

Up to March 24, each club member sending in $25 in subscriptions, in addition to increasing his or her chance to win the Buick special prize by that sum in cash subscriptions, will be credited with 10,000 extra votes to count in deciding the original prize winners. Of course, each dollar above the $25 minimum will receive 2,000 bonus votes.

Of Vital Importance. "These bonus votes will mean everything when the final check up on the original prize list is made," club officials declare. "You can only win them during the special Buick prize period, for after March 24 positively no bonus votes will be given anyone, and only the regular scale of votes will be credited."

"Therefore, every dollar you turn in before March 25 will do double duty for you. It will help you run up a cash subscription total in the special Buick offer, and will bring you extra votes to count in the original award offer."

"This is your great opportunity, and your final one. No bonus votes will be given when March 24 passes, and no extra prize offer of any kind will be made after that time. Those statements are positive. You can depend upon them: so get every dollar in subscriptions you possibly can before March 25 and shoot them in. A word to the wise is sufficient."

Exide BATTERIES

Even the Eskimos!

WHEN Donald MacMillan returned from his recent expedition to Baffin Land, he told of many ways that Exide Batteries had served him in the frozen North, such as for radio, electric lights, ignition for the oil-burning engine. But most appealing of all was an Exide's supply of current for the moving picture machine.

The Eskimos came aboard the ice-bound ship and sat transfixed with wonder as they watched their first "movie," occasionally voicing their amazement with a guttural "Ke-pee" (wonderful).

Wherever batteries are used

Amundsen also has with him in the Arctic a powerful Exide Battery for radio and electric lighting. The rugged dependability that makes Exides stand up under the most trying conditions has brought them into general use wherever great reliance must be put on a battery.

Nearly all the huge batteries in central power and lighting stations are Exides, as are most of those which supply current for the small individual power and light plants on farms. Exides propel submarines under the sea and mine locomotives under the surface of the earth. They provide current for the telephone system and ring the city fire alarm.

For every man who owns a car

You don't go on Arctic voyages or install fire alarms, but you do from time to time have to buy a new battery for your automobile. Exides give the same kind of ungrudging service in cars that they do in every other field. By choosing an Exide you choose the maximum comfort in motoring, and also true economy, because the Exide lasts so much longer.

The nearest Exide Service Station has a battery the right size for your car.

SALVATION ARMY CONGRESS TO END

Evangeline Booth Goes North—Estill and Staff To Tour Florida—All Leave Today.

The southern congress of the Salvation Army, which has been in session here since Saturday, will be brought to a formal close this evening, after three regular council meetings are held during the day at the First Baptist church.

Delegates will depart to their respective posts in the seven southern states immediately thereafter, and the colorful uniforms of the two hundred and more officers who have attended the conference will disappear from the streets, except for the Atlanta staff which will settle down to the task of carrying on its regular relief program in the city.

Commander Evangeline Booth and members of her personal staff will leave the city at noon for the north, where she goes to fill several very important engagements.

Will Tour Florida. Commissioners and Mrs. Thomas Estill and a number of other headquarters staff officers will accompany Colonel and Mrs. Joseph Atkinson, commander of the southern division, on a tour of inspection of Florida posts on Thursday.

The trip will be made by automobile from Jacksonville and will take two weeks. Preaching services will be held at St. Augustine, Daytona, Titusville, Cocoa, Ft. Pierce, West Palm Beach, Miami, DeLand, Sanford, Orlando, Kissimmee, Bartow, Lakeland, Plant City, Tampa, Clearwater, St. Petersburg and Palatka.

Quartet on Trip. There will be four cars in the convoy, and fourteen persons will make the journey. Included among these will be the territorial silver quartet, which made such a hit in Atlanta during the congress, which is to furnish special musical programs en route. Two cars will leave Atlanta this morning, and they will be joined by two other cars in Jacksonville. The commissioner and his staff will go from Atlanta to Jacksonville by train. Much good has been accomplished by the local congress, according to Colonel Atkinson, and a highly successful year for the southern posts is anticipated. Expansion is anticipated in southern work during the next twelve months.

Struck down by an unidentified automobile on Tuesday, John Boon, of Birmingham, suffered lacerations about his head and body. He was picked up by passers-by, and taken to Grady hospital, but was discharged a few hours later.

Charges of reckless driving were docketed against L. F. Gibson, of 35 East North avenue, and Mrs. R. E. Guerrin, of 150 West Baker street, whose automobiles collided at the corner of West Peachtree and Baltimore block, Tuesday afternoon. Both were slightly hurt and both cars were badly damaged. ## Fines or Prison Birthday "Gift" For Dawson Boys

Federal Judge Fines Man Who Broke Drug Law for Suffering Sister.

"Being that it is your birthday, I'll give you and your partner both the option of paying a fine of $100 or going to jail for 60 days," or words to that effect, was the expression of Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of the United States district court, Tuesday as he completed the record in the case of two Dawson county youths who pleaded guilty to charges of making whisky. John Townsend, whose twentieth birthday happened to fall on the fateful thirteenth of March, was one of the offenders, and Hymie Goswick, who claims to be even younger than his partner, was the other. Both pleaded guilty, and both received the same sentence.

A number of other liquor cases were disposed of in rapid-fire order in the district court Tuesday.

Drugs for Dying. Two more cases of minor importance, that of J. H. Stroud, of Bartow county, and that of J. B. Thurman, of Fulton county, were disposed of with nominal fines. Stroud was fined $50 upon statement of officers that the narcotic illegally handled were, in their belief, used by defendant in allaying suffering of a brother and sister who have since died of an illness from which they were suffering at the time the case was made against Stroud. He was in the drug business, and had his case transferred from Rome in order that he might enter a plea of guilty.

The case of Thurman, who is a doctor, was also disposed of with assessment of a $50 fine. The charge was dispensing morphine without keeping proper records, and the court was informed that defendant had committed the offense without intention of evading or violating the law.

Stolen Money Case. A. H. Patton, charged with possessing currency stolen in interstate commerce, will go on trial Wednesday, it was announced. J. P. Hutson, who pleaded guilty of a charge brought in connection with the same case, was sentenced to a year and a day in the federal penitentiary, or to pay a fine of $750.

The case is understood to have grown out of the theft of an express package containing money for the federal reserve bank. Hutson, the court was convinced, did not benefit greatly through the theft, and was used by the others involved, hence the choice of fine or imprisonment given him.

This case will take up considerable time, officials indicated.

TIRE RETAILERS CALL MEETING FOR WEDNESDAY

An important meeting of the newly organized Atlanta Retail Tire Dealers' association has been called for this evening at 7:30 o'clock, chamber of commerce assembly hall, to discuss proposed plans for bettering service of tire dealers to the motoring public. The new organization has taken hold of its responsibility in increased service to the motoring public and expects to concentrate a large portion of its activities along these lines during the next year. Although the association is hardly two weeks old nearly 75 per cent of the representative tire dealers have become members.

The new association has affiliated with the Atlanta Automobile association, previously composed only of automobile and accessory dealers. The addition of the tire dealers makes the Atlanta association the strongest automotive association of its kind in the south, its officers say.

ALUMNI OF V. M. I. TO HONOR NICHOLS

General E. W. Nichols, Superintendent of Noted Military Institute, Arrives in Atlanta Today.

General Edward W. Nichols, superintendent of Virginia Military institute, will arrive in Atlanta this morning as the honored guest of alumni of V. M. I. at a banquet to be given at the Capital City club tomorrow.

The Virginia Military institute is one of the leading military institutions of the country, being second only to

GENERAL EDWARD W. NICHOLS

West Point in the personnel of its academic staff, the completeness of its curriculum and the record of its accomplishments. It was established at Lexington in 1820 by a special act of the general assembly of Virginia, and the list of its graduates comprises many notable men who have made the military, financial, professional and political history of the south.

Jackson Led Cadets. General Stonewall Jackson held the chair of physics at the institute when the south seceded from the union, and personally led the corps of cadets to Richmond in April, 1861.

During the war the cadets were repeatedly called into active service in the valley of Virginia, and on May 13, 1864, the corps of cadets in the battle of over 50 killed and wounded distinguished for unprecedented valor and heroism, suffering a loss in this battle of over 30 killed and wounded out of an aggregate battalion of 250 cadets.

During the succeeding month, the barracks, library and quarters of the institute, with all the apparatus and instruments of the various departments of the school, were burned by order of General David Hunter, commanding the United States army then operating in the valley of Virginia.

Restored After War. Upon the conclusion of the war, the buildings and equipment of the school were immediately restored; the institute was reopened and entered upon an era of unprecedented prosperity, continuing to enlarge the sphere of its usefulness, and during the present year its enrollment showed 607 cadets.

When the United States declared war against Germany, the present superintendent, General Nichols, promptly tendered his services to the government, serving with distinction as a member of the United States military board.

General Nichols had filled the chair of mathematics at the V. M. I. for more than 30 years, and is recognized as one of the leading educators of the country.

His consistent and intelligent administration of the institute has been largely responsible for the success it has attained, and has invoked laudatory letters of unstinted commendation for the V. M. I. from General Pershing, General Wood and other distinguished representatives of the United States army, who have stressed the important part played in the world war by graduates of the Virginia Military institute.

MAYOR ANSWERS HAM No Connection Between Fees and Police Fight.

Indorsing the stand taken by Rev. John W. Ham, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, in his sermon Sunday, in which he ministered rapped the county fee system, Mayor Walter A. Sims Tuesday declared he shared the same views and had advocated a change since 1921.

The mayor took issue with Rev. Ham on the latter's views regarding the police controversy, stating that he could see no relation between the two subjects. The minister charged in his sermon that those who "were benefited by the fee system were conducting the fight on Chief Beavers."

"I have favored abolition of the fee system since the bunco investigation in 1921," declared Mayor Sims. It is unquestionably wrong, I do not agree with Rev. Ham's views on the police situation which he linked with his utterances against the fee system. "Police reform is one thing and abolishment of the fee system another. I favor both."

CHAPTER XII.

"I understand that perfectly," lied the clever little milliner. "If I knew you better, I could explain lots of things about you."

The bait was swallowed instantly. Lady Warrington, whatever her virtues, did not number reticence among them.

"Do, do tell me!" She moved nearer the speaker, quite enthralled. "I haven't met anyone in ages who so interests me" (Which, in a way, was true, since it's human nature to find the topic of one's self absorbing).

"I have an almost infallible instinct in these matters," quoth Leonie, enjoying her effect. "I sense things."

Here a waiter approached, and Lady Warrington ordered two more liqueurs—a second for herself, and one for the fascinating "seeress."

"I sense things," proceeded the latter, solemnly. "For instance, the moment I meet a woman, I know if she has charm for men, or not. It—forgive my frankness—it radiates from you! It's a power beyond good looks, equipped as you already are with these. It's something indefinable, and yet—Barrie says so aptly—if a woman has this charm, she has every feminine weapon rolled in one, and needs nothing else. I am sure"—here Leonie lowered her voice confidentially—"I am sure that your life has been full of men. Dear lady, you simply couldn't help it. It isn't in your power to drive them off. It never will be. You are one of those people—fortunate or unfortunate—who are fated to attract the opposite sex—they have suitors, one after another." She broke off.

"(Good gracious! I sound exactly like a cheap fortune-teller! I ought to have a red scarf round my head and big gilt earrings," she told herself. "She'll never fall for this old stuff.")

"Oh, do go on," breathed Lady Warrington. This news was meat and drink to her—may I repeat and amplify. "I—please don't think me vain!—but I do have a queer sort of fascination for some people."

Leonie nodded sagely.

"I know it. And you'll never grow old, either. This was a master stroke. You'll always have that young, vital air you have just now. Your type can never age."

"(The poor, deluded dear is just ready to fall on my neck and kiss me!)" thought the arch-flatterer, in triumph.

"My family do keep their youthful looks. They're noted for it," stammered the delighted hearer.

"Ah, it's nothing to do with that. It's you, yourself. It's your avidity for life, your young enthusiasm, and—above all—the curious power some women have—(you're one of them)—of attracting love and homage wherever you go. This universal admiration does keep a woman young."

"I've just come back from a visit to the United States, and over there the men were simply wonderful to me," cooed the enraptured hearer.

"They lunched me and dined me, and motored me everywhere, and said such—such sweet and gracious things—"

"(They would!)" thought her companion grimly. "From all I've heard, it takes an American man to do the heroic stunt, and make a plain woman feel that just to be a woman is a triumph. I'll take my hat off to them, every time. May be, one day I'll go there myself, and try 'em out.")

Her companion produced a card-case, and offered her a bit of postcard, whereon her name was printed.

"Lady Warrington," read Leonie aloud, in tones made up of just the right proportion of astonishment, delight, and awe. "This is a pleasant surprise for me. I've heard of you so frequently from dear personal friends of mine."

And here the bold young creature named the wealthiest of her customers and those most socially prominent, whose names would at least be familiar to her vis-a-vis.

Not knowing in what circumstances Miss Leonie had met them, Lady Warrington was agreeably flattered once again.

"I'm sorry I haven't a card of my own with me," apologized the former. (It wouldn't do to produce a business card—not yet.) "But I am Leonie Day—one of the Hampshire Days, you know," she added, as an afterthought.

Lady Warrington gave a little squeal and held her hand out cordially.

"My late husband was a great friend of dear, handsome Sir Marmaduke Day, who was killed some years ago in a hunting accident," she gurgled.

"Ah, yes! A cousin of mine! Sad affair!" remarked the little hat-shopper, nonchalantly. Then, with a quick twist of conversation, so that quicksands might be dodged—"We were talking of your hats. I was to see them, wasn't I?"

Lady Warrington rose immediately. Together they went up to her room, which was strewn with boxes of all shapes and sizes.

Leonie's trained fingers twisted the smart models into new and more becoming angles for her new acquaintance. Alas! she couldn't bring about a similar miracle with the colors, which were much too glaring to frame the sallow countenance of the wearer.

"I choose the blue to match the color of my eyes," came the complacent comment. "And a touch of pink—as in that rose—brings out the rose tints in my cheeks. Don't you think so?"

Frankly, Leonie did not.

She achieved wonders, all the same, first of all dressing Lady Warrington's untidy locks in more becoming style, and then affixing each at its correct angle.

"You are a genius," breathed the older woman. "You have transformed me, dear! Maids never stay with me, I'm so untidy and erratic. But I really need one. My friend, Mr. Warwick Tremaine, did say he'd found a capable Swiss woman who understood hair-dressing and so on, but I've heard no more about her."

"Mr. Tremaine is also a friend of mine," said Leonie, glad they had one mutual acquaintance. "Perhaps I could find a suitable girl for you."

A page tapped at the door, a letter in his hand.

"For mam'selle. I saw mam'selle come to madame's room." He handed it to Leonie, and withdrew.

She tore the flap open, and gave a little gasp of pleasure.

"A friend of mine—a sculptor—is in Paris. He invites me to his exhibition tomorrow afternoon, and says that I may bring a friend." Then, anxious to humor Lady Warrington, and to cement the new acquaintance, he should be so pleased if you'd come with me? He's a dear, and so attractive. Everyone likes Miles Holden."

"Miles Holden? The handsome young man they made such a fuss of in America?" Lady Warrington's blue eyes sparkled in anticipation.

"My dear, the papers were full of his praises, and his photographs! Of course, I'll come. I'd love to meet him!"

Another fine installment of this story tomorrow.

The contest began in January and lasted several weeks.

Other guests of the American service men will be members of Dawson post, it having been agreed when the Albany-American contest was begun that the losing post would include the Dawson post members in the dinner invitation. The challenge was made by the two posts at a meeting of the local post here the first of the year, several members of the Albany and American posts having been present. One made the challenge, the other accepted, and then invited Dawson to the feast, which, as it happens, will be in America. A large number will attend.

ALLEGED SYNDICALIST

Juryman Warned Against Flood of Propaganda Pouring Into Michigan.

St. Joseph, Mich., March 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—Selection of a jury to try William Z. Foster, charged with violating Michigan's law against criminal syndicalism, was virtually completed when court adjourned this evening. Frank P. Walsh, attorney for Foster, finally tendered a completed panel to the state just before adjournment, and Prosecutor Charles W. Gore expects to complete his questioning of the juryman tomorrow.

Two women and ten men are on the panel tentatively slated, one of the three women passed yesterday being excused at her request.

Propaganda mailed throughout the country in behalf of Foster and 75 others for whom warrants were issued as a result of the holding of the communist party convention near here last August, and an editorial in a local paper yesterday in the interest of the prosecution, attracted so much attention from attorneys for both today that Judge Charles White tonight cautioned the jurors against reading anything bearing on the case.

Mr. Walsh retorted to the state's repeated questioning about the defense propaganda, by asking the jurors if they had read a signed article by a Boston, Mass., newspaper man, attacking Foster and the other defendants, which appeared in a St. Joseph paper last week.

Most of today was spent by the defense in examining the prospective jurors as to their state of mind toward advocates of revolution as a means of accomplishing political reform.

L'Africaine Will Be Given At Atlanta Woman's Club

The interpretation of "L'Africaine" will be the second number on the series of opera musicales being given by the Atlanta Woman's club every Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The announced presentation of "L'Africaine" in miniature on March 14 has caused a furor among music lovers and indications point to a large attendance at this the first occasion where this opera, new to Atlanta opera goers, will be the center of attraction.

The program as announced by Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, chairman of arrangements, and Mrs. John M. Cooper, chairman of music for the musicals, is as follows: Recitative and romance from the part of Ines, "Farewell, Native Land," will be sung by Mrs. Merrill Smith. Selika's aria, "Child of the Sun," will be sung by Mrs. Suzanne Bowden Johnson. R.

E. Dale will sing the inspiring ballad, "Admirer, Monarch of the Deep." A. W. Browning will sing the dramatic grand aria, "Oh, Paradise on Earth." The story of the opera will be told with fine dramatic insight by Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin.

Miss Eda Bartholmew will play all accompaniments. This opera of Meyerbeer's mature years was first produced during the crisis of a French revolution and was composed during years of rapid change in European customs the effect of which may be frequently discerned in the dramatic variations which run the gamut from simple lyric ballads to tremendous accumulations of harmony resulting in such moments as are glimpsed in the aria Mrs. Browning will sing and which give dramatic passages to Mr. Dale's song. The aria to be sung by Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Smith, both of whom are successful teachers as well as soloists, demonstrate the softer qualities and the purely lyrical passages which develop musical themes of surpassing sweetness throughout the opera.

No more delightful cultural opportunity will be offered Atlanta music lovers than the interpretation of "L'Africaine" on Wednesday afternoon by the group of talented people who will sing and read on that occasion, and the lovely setting afforded by the Woman's club auditorium will assist in making the musicale an attraction visual as well as musical.

All of the proceeds will go to the Woman's club building fund. Season tickets may be obtained for $2 each and will cover "L'Africaine" and the five opera musicales to follow. Single admission will be 50 cents.

Club Luncheon Honors Visitors.

An interesting event of Tuesday was the "inspirational" luncheon at which the Atlanta Woman's club entertained at the clubhouse on Peachtree street, complimentary to Miss Helen Louise Johnson, a writer of national note, and Miss Mary Cresswell, head of the hon. economics department of the University of Georgia.

The prettily appointed luncheon tables were placed in the rooms of the clubhouse. Vases and baskets of jonquils, daffodils and other yellow flowers decorated the tables.

Mrs. B. M. Boykin, president of the Atlanta Woman's club, and Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith were hostesses at the table where the honor guests and a number of influential railroad men were seated.

Mrs. Victoria C. Wing, chairman of the some economics committee, was hostess to the members of her executive board at another table.

Mrs. I. H. Hankerson, of McDonough, and Mrs. D. C. Goodwin, of Austell, entertained groups of friends. Miss Johnson, the former chairman of the General Federation of Women's clubs, editor of The Table Talk, assistant editor of Harper's Bazaar, and at one time editor of the General Federation Magazine, spoke following the luncheon in the auditorium of the club on "Woman and the Clothes."

A ton of coal a year is wasted by each uninsulated hot water tank in the American home, according to a prominent manufacturer.

Mrs. Falconer Gives Talk On Young Girl of Today

Mrs. Martha P. Falconer, of the American Social Hygiene association, who is in Atlanta attending the Southern Regional Child Welfare conference being held this week, is one of the constructive thinkers of America. During the war she gave invaluable aid to the government in her social welfare work in the training camps. She is a deep student of all problems relating to child life and that of delinquent girls and the adolescent youth. Mrs. Falconer is at the Wincoff hotel.

BY MARTHA GOODE ANDERSON
"Children are a great responsibility to parents," says Mrs. Martha P. Falconer, of the American Social Hygiene association, who is here attending the Southern Regional Child Welfare Conference. "But parents are frequently as great a responsibility to children."

"Perhaps the most fatal mistake most of us, who are parents, make," she told me yesterday, "is in thinking that our boys and girls want to be like us. It is utterly impossible for 20 to get the view point of 40, however impossible it seems for us to realize this when we are 40. It may be that the years intervening since our own tender years have robbed us of this understanding. This is one reason why in all of my social welfare work I have never been a believer in the curfew law for the boy and girl past the childhood years. It may do well for young children but for the older ones whose natural craving is for legitimate pleasure and diversions belonging to that time of life it will not do at all."

Mrs. Falconer has the most remarkable clear blue eyes which see straight to the very bottom of every problem which confronts her. She is as gentle of manner as she is clear of mental vision. Her understanding of the boys and girls of whose problems she has made a long and conscientious study, coupled with her wide experience in institutional work, in training camp activities during the war and in her efforts in social hygiene have made her what she is, the American authority in this line of work.

Give Youth Rightful Pleasures.
She makes a very strong plea for the legitimate life of youth—which means its wonderful capacity for enjoyment of all the little things which to older years may seem so unworthy while and so trivial and which are yet so important to that point of view.

"We hear on every side," said Mrs. Falconer, "that the young people of today are fast, wild and extravagant; that parents, the war, and the free use of motor cars are to blame for these conditions. Let us ask ourselves if this can be so—for into all of this chaos comes the young girl seeking life, beauty, opportunity for work and play, and companionship. Whatever the causes for the existing conditions at any time the young girl is not to blame, for she is not responsible for them. The girl, poor dear, hears on all sides that the modern girl is restless, that she craves new forms of diversions and fresh excitement, that she is rebellious to discipline, and is not willing to accept what she considers the staid restraint of convention and much more in this strain."

"But we were told by our parents much the same thing," said Mrs. Falconer, smilingly. "Writers for generations have deplored the restlessness of women. Let us keep on being restless and dissatisfied with present conditions until men and women working together make our communities safer and better for our young people."

Fault-Finding Will Not Help.
How can we interpret life to our young girls and help them make adjustments? No longer are marriage and teaching the only avenues open to women, and for this we are thankful. One young woman who was in her third year in college said to me recently: "I do not want to marry; I am not fond of housework; I do not wish to marry unless I fail at everything else." True, she may change her mind, let us hope she will, but she expressed a common attitude toward marriage on the part of many young girls.

Continual fault-finding or criticism will not help the girl to turn to her parents for guidance and companionship. We must try to train our young people for a marriage of comradeship and social responsibility, and should begin with sex education at an early age, supplemented by a community program of wholesome recreation and religious education.

Mrs. Falconer will be one of the speakers at the conference, which is one of the most important ever held in the south. At the luncheon of the League of Women Voters held yesterday, Mrs. Falconer made a forceful speech in which she urged prevention rather than correction as the most beneficial attitude towards all problems of child life. She pointed out the need in Atlanta for more probation officers who shall be trained women of the highest type, urging for the food of keeping families together rather than the building of so many correctional institutions.

She will be one of the speakers at the child welfare conference Wednesday. She will attend the Florida state conference on child welfare to be held

Bird Student And Scientist To Lecture

Charles Crawford Garst, bird student and scientist of national reputation and an imitator of bird tones that stands among the best in the world, will lecture for the Atlanta public schools at the Tabernacle Baptist church on Friday afternoon, March 16, at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Garst is recognized as one of the great naturalists of the country. He has given years of his life to the intensive study of birdlore, and if he has given any one branch of this interesting nature work more attention than others, it is the study of bird songs, and a mastery of bird song imitations. He has perfected the reproduction of more than 600 songs of more than 200 birds, and this interesting and novel part of his program has won for him the title of "The Bird Man."

Mr. Garst is a member of the American Ornithologists' union, the National Association of Audubon Societies and other leading organizations of naturalists. His accomplishments and his lectures bear the unstinted endorsement of such men as the late John Burroughs, T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Audubon society; Frank M. Chapman, noted ornithologist; Wintthrop Packard, of the Massachusetts Audubon society; Dr. R. J. H. DeLoach, of Georgia, and many others.

Rich lovers not immediately connected with the schools will be granted the pleasure of hearing Mr. Garst for the nominal sum of 25 cents.

Who Sent Y. W. C. A. An Unsigned Check?

Mrs. Stephen Barnett, of 95 East Fourteenth street, announces that somewhere in Atlanta is a woman who has mailed her a check for $5 as a sustaining membership in the Young Women's Christian association, but according to Mrs. Barnett the generous person forgot to sign her name to the check. It was written on January 12, the number is 43 and payable at the Atlanta National bank. After holding the check while trying to locate the sender, the "Y" membership drive workers finally decided that only one woman in Atlanta who is known for her absentmindedness could have mailed the unsigned check. The woman was in Florida, so when she came home a few days ago, she was shown the slip of blue paper and while she acknowledged that she had forgotten her trunk and left it in Florida, never could she have been guilty of mailing the unsigned check.

Mrs. Barnett, as chairman of the woman's division of the "Y" membership drive, says that she hopes the woman who forgot to sign her name will go to the Y. W. office, Peachtree Avenue, where she will find her check. Signed it will mean one more member in the association's drive for 5,000 new members.

Miss Moran Issues Card.

Half scholarships to the Atlanta Business college, Bryan-Holton Business college, Simplex Business college, for which only one-half the usual tuition must be paid, are offered to descendants of Confederate veterans through the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C. Application for these scholarships should be made immediately to Miss R. M. Moran, 126 East Eleventh street.

U. D. C. Dance At Roseland.

The Fulton chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will entertain their friends with a benefit dance at Roseland hall, corner Peachtree and Cain streets, Wednesday evening from 9 to 12 o'clock. These dances are given every Wednesday night and the members of the various dance clubs of the city are cordially invited. Popular music by an eight-piece orchestra.

Oriental Rugs

One-Third to One-Half Less

—To further acquaint the public with the unusual quality of our rugs and to strengthen the favorable impression being made by the department, this unusual offering—

—With the eyes of all the earth, today, dazzled by the splendors of the ancient East, new interest gathers about its supreme art as expressed in these magnificent hand-woven carpets. For rug-weaving is, essentially, an Oriental art. The infinite patience of the Oriental, his loving reverence for his task and his materials, as well as the famed dyes and wool of the Eastern lands help to account for the rare excellence of his rugs. Coincident with the present wave of enthusiasm for the magic Orient, is presented this group of

Fifteen Fine 9x12 Chinese and Persian Carpets From Our Regular Stock at $295

—FIFTEEN CARPETS, only, in this exceptional offering! Fifteen Oriental carpets at one-third to one-half price, $295! The limited number suggests early selection.

—These two groups of Oriental rugs exhibit two great facts:

Persian Rugs

Are the Aristocrats of Floor Coverings

—Originally the floor and couch coverings woven definitely for the ancient kings and queens, the royal beauty of Persian rugs continues to fascinate those who value the finer things of life. Their colors glow softly as in the old mosaics. Their designs are full of significance. Their beauty is the beauty that increases as time mellows their marvelous tones. Truly, these are rugs to delight artists.

—The Persian rugs in this special offering are of the grade that sells regularly for $600. Now, $295.

Chinese Rugs

Possess Unsurpassed Decorative Value

—Unlike the all-over designs of Persian rugs, the Chinese patterns are seen in medallions and spot patterns and borders. The ground colors stand out in all the vivid tones and are triumphant backgrounds for the typical Chinese motifs that decorate them. Temples, dragons and butterflies, naturally, are the most popular of the woven pictures.

—The Chinese rugs included at this special price would sell in a specialty shop for $595. Now, $295.

Simple Way to Get

Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads—that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of calamine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads lightly—wash the face and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calamine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads as they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.—(adv.)

She commended the school supervisors and urged closer co-operation between the parents and the school supervisors, which would mean fewer cases of juvenile and other court cases. Mrs. Faulkner talked most interestingly of the importance of the temple standard, and urged the women of Atlanta to stand solidly back of the same moral standard for both men and women. Mrs. Conway made a very short talk on forestry and begged the women of Georgia to study conditions and get back of the Georgia legislature and urge better laws for re-foresting our state. Mrs. B. M. ### Mrs. J. Sprole Lyons Speaks at Y. W. C. A.

When a group of church and Y. W. C. A. leaders assembled at "Y" administration headquarters, Peachtree Arcade, Tuesday evening, to discuss plans for interesting young women who are strangers in this city in attending churches of their own selection, Mrs. J. Sprole Lyons, of the First Presbyterian church, urged the leaders to present their church programs to the young women in a way that will meet their needs. The speaker stated that if girls in the central section of Atlanta are not attending the outlying churches, then the leaders of far out churches should meet their responsibility by assisting the central leaders in putting on their programs for girls.

Mrs. W. A. Albright, chairman of the religious education committee of the Y. W. C. A., presided at the meeting. Miss Irma E. Finley, "Y" general secretary, urged the leaders to keep in touch with girls in their neighborhoods. She stated that the Y. W. C. A. is open to all girls, regardless of membership dues and that no girl is denied a privilege of the association because she is not a member. The general secretary urged the church leaders to invite girls to join the "Y" where they will have companionship with other girls, the advantage of educational classes and clubs, combined with wholesome recreation. Miss Finley said that the association has for all girls a free employment bureau, a free room registry that finds a girl a living place in wholesome surroundings, a summer camp and a friendly worker whose duty is to help girls in solving their joys as well as sorrows; a "Y" home at 56-62 West Baker street, where board is given at the lowest possible rate. In a recent survey conducted by the Y. W. C. A. and church co-operative committee, 571 names of girls were secured, 116 of the number being without church affiliations. In the survey each girl had signed a card, stating the church of her selection. At last night's meeting the cards were distributed among the church leaders and they in turn will visit the girls in their respective church neighborhoods. The leaders will have regular meetings at the Y. W. that they may enlarge their program for girls. Mrs. Lyons in defining the responsibility of Atlanta's churches to girls in the central section of the city, declared that Atlanta's greatest present need is a central Y. W. C. A. building that will offer the association and the women and girls of this community a modern building with modern and adequate facilities.

DISTINGUISHED by great beauty of material and unusual grace of line are the latest models in corsets.

With all the talk about the uncorseted figure, most women continue to find some form of corset or brassiere indispensable in looking their best.

Fortunately, the old-fashioned corset that resembled a steel jacket more than anything else is a thing of the past.

The modern woman insists upon being comfortably corseted; in fact, the more comfortably corseted she is, the more fashionably corseted she is apt to be.

Time was, when to be fashionably corseted was to be uncomfortably, if not injuriously, corseted, but that is a thing of the past.

The new corset, whether it be in the form of a wrap-around, girdle, or boned model, is so designed that every woman may enjoy the pleasure of being correctly, stylishly and withal quite comfortably corseted.

Of course the type of gown to be worn will influence the choice of the corset.

The well-dressed woman will not depend on any one type of corset any more than on one style of gown.

Our expert corsetieres are at your service for fitting and for giving helpful advice in the selecting of corset models best suited to each individual type and to the styles of dress to be worn.

You are cordially invited to take advantage of this service in our corset parlors—second floor.

CRAWFORD SERIOUSLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Columbus, Ga., March 13.—William H. Crawford, broker, who suffered a fracture of the skull and other injuries when an automobile which he was driving crashed into a wooden pier supporting railroad tracks at a late hour last night, had not regained full consciousness tonight, it was declared at the city hospital.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Everything for Convenience. If a wire hook is sewn on the clothesline and pushed along in front of you when you hang out clothes.

Will Remove Stains. If your porcelain sink or bathtub gets a yellow mark from constant dripping of water, the spot will disappear immediately if rubbed with pumice stone.

Saves Time. As you discover things that need mending, when ironing, why not put them in a certain section of the rack so they can be carried right to the mending basket without further sorting?

For the Sore Finger. It is wise to save a couple of fingers from worn kid gloves. If you are unfortunate enough to cut your finger the kid will act as a protector and hide an unattractive bandage.

Any woman who will stop and consider the result of a questionnaire recently sent out by the Lydia E. Fifty thousand replies were received, and 98 out of every 100 women stated they had been benefited or restored to health by its use. This means better health for American women. ## Confessions of a Debutante

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

INSTALLMENT NO. 51.

A LIGHTED FUSE.

Who's Who in the Story.

I ran away from my fiancé, Jonathan Grey, rich and elderly, to the arms of Larry, a man who dances well. His wife, my action and becomes my friend. I return home. My engagement is announced, though my affection belongs to my stranger, who staggered to my coming over my action, and then coming to a better understanding than ever, I go shopping. The girl whom Jonathan asked to substitute for me, because of the uncertainty of my arrival at my engagement party, is arrested over my action, and then coming to a better understanding than ever, I go shopping. The girl whom Jonathan asked to substitute for me, because of the uncertainty of my arrival at my engagement party, is arrested over my action, and then coming to a better understanding than ever, I go shopping.

Saturday, January 27.

"Hoddy, what did you mean?" I whispered, knowing well enough what he meant.

He went on then and told me that the papers had it that a girl who had been arrested for shoplifting had given my name, had failed to identify herself, however, and was finally scheduled on the blotter as Jane Doe.

"You're getting pretty important since you're to be Mrs. Grey, pretty important as we tapped off the measure of the mule."

I giggled. I was wondering the while why Jonathan had paled, what he knew of the store that it should have so visible an effect on him.

I wondered too what Hoddy's attitude would have been had he known that I had come, almost from jail, to this dance and tomorrow would be back in the hands of the law.

I had a wild impulse to tell him. I held him away from me and looked at him intently.

"What's that matter?" he queried.

"What would you say if I told you that girl was I?" I asked smiling.

"You can't get away with it—you're no actress at all! You flatter yourself!" he laughed.

I turned away to hide what I feared was a too revealing smile. Odd what a difference clothes, motors and even temporary environs make! If I had had my motor along in the morning, the detective would have believed when I told him who I was. Now mingling with this throng of debutantes Hoddy wouldn't believe that I truly had been the prisoner at the bar!

Odd—that!

When the music ceased I lingered in the palm-dotted entrance with Hoddy, who had come back to me after I'd been cut in on a dozen times or more. I was not anxious to see Jonathan again. I wanted to give him time to digest whatever it was that occupied his attention. I wanted him to wonder about me. Perhaps to worry a bit. I wanted to arouse his jealousy and bring him to the point of self-accusation. Then he might tell me about the girl and the sapphire bracelet.

With the strumming of the orchestra again Hoddy became restless.

Finally:

"Can't let this good music go to waste; too many pretty girls here," he said, and started piloting me toward the dancers.

"Grey dancing?" he asked, watching the moving figures.

"You want to ditch me, don't you,

Hoddy?" I said. "Trot along—I'll find my man."

With that I slipped through the group of dancers near and almost into the arms of Jonathan.

"I was looking for you," he said when he recovered from the shock of the encounter.

"Dance?" he suggested.

I nodded and we moved heavily over the floor.

Jonathan's face was a study. He was intensely thoughtful. A number of times I tried to interest him in the usual dancing chatter. His answers were preoccupied and stupid, even more stupid than the things I had said to him.

I watched him for a space and then touched a match to the fuse.

"I saw a bracelet, today, exactly like mine," I said.

Jonathan started. He looked for a moment as if he had seen a ghost. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

You know the reputation of the Buick Automobile. It's just one of the classiest, most reliable and dependable motor cars on the market, and the beautiful four-cylinder touring car pictured above is one of the best jobs the Buick people have ever turned out.

And this very car is going to be awarded to some member of The Constitution's Help-Yourself Club on March 24th—just two weeks from last Monday! The member who wins this car will be the one who on that date has turned in the greatest amount of subscription payments since the Special Award Offer was announced in last Sunday's Constitution.

This offer is open to everybody, no matter whether you have been in this campaign from the start, or have never entered your name as a member before.

To those who wish to jump in NOW and work for this Special Award we assure you that you have a wonderful opportunity, for no other member will have the least advantage over you. What the members who have been in the campaign have done in the past will have absolutely no bearing on this special Award. This car will be awarded for what is done between March 12 and March 24.

Regular members who for any reason have become a little indifferent, we urge you to go to work RIGHT NOW and WORK AS NEVER BEFORE. It is a golden opportunity for you. These two weeks of hard work may mean not only your winning this Special Award but also one of the other big automobile awards. And for every $25 in subscription payments turned in before March 24 you will be given 50,000 EXTRA VOTES, and 2,000 EXTRA VOTES for every dollar over that amount. Absolutely no extra votes will be given AFTER March 24, no matter how many subscription dollars you turn in.

Second Payment Subscriptions Give You Great Impetus

Second Payments will do you a good turn. The rapid way to increase your votes is to get in touch with your friends who have given you short term subscriptions earlier in the campaign and get them to extend their subscriptions enough to fill out the year or to make two years or five years. They promised you earlier in the campaign that they would stand by you if you showed them you were in this campaign to WIN. Show them that you stand well in the race and that you have as much chance to win as anybody. No member has enough votes in reserve to allow them to ease up in their efforts, for there are members surging just below them who are making desperate efforts to crowd them out of their enviable position.

The Eternal Eve

BY MAY CHRISTIE

"It seemed to me that you held the opinions of the average city girl, that was all."

"On what?" queried Eve.
"On matters matrimonial," he casually replied, "that is, the material point of view."

"She wheeled round on him, little sparks of anger shining in her pretty eyes and a distinct tremor in her voice."

"You mean—I'd marry for money?"

"I think it might influence you—since you want me to be explicit," he made answer, his bitter thoughts on John Carwell. He had no delusions now that Eve cared for him—Wilfred Roscommon; she had been amusing herself."

"Thank heaven! he would soon be back to the wild, free romances that he loved, far from these petty troubles and heart-searchings that acquaintanceship with women always seemed to bring."

"Eve was speaking now, in a voice that held a queer, suppressed emotion. Your opinion of me is scarcely flattering," she said.

"Where I'm concerned you may be assured that I'm giving my honest opinion!" There was sincerity in his words.

But Eve, incensed, cried angrily: "I'm assured of only one thing—that you're the most hateful man I've ever known!"

Then, turning quickly from him, she hastened through the darkness to her room.

It was a disconsolate girl who reached the sanctuary of the hut that evening. Her one idea was to be alone, to hide her trouble from prying eyes, particularly those of Mary.

Her interview with the airman seemed to have only widened the breach that had sprung up between them.

"I was absolutely rude to him!" said Eve candidly, eyeing her pale, attractive face in the six-by-eight inch mirror which adorned the wall of her small cubicle.

Yes, she might be pretty—but she had been rude! She had insisted on the last word—the proverbial "last word" which ruins the chances of women's chances every year, and which is liable to alienate even deeply-rooted male affections! Her type of "last word," Eve reflected, had been ridiculously childish, too.

What was it she had said to him? "You're the most hateful man I've ever known!" Her face flushed at the recollection.

"Of course he had been wrong in his insinuations—practically telling her that she intended marrying some one for his money! The captain hadn't any particular share of this world's goods. To whom, then, was he referring?"

Somewhere around the region of supper time Mary came to visit Eve. A new little air of self-assurance hung about her.

She sank into an easy chair with a sigh that testified to Herculean labors. "Heavens! I'm exhausted! Captain work's most frightfully tiring!"

She closed her eyes. "I always thought you a sort of heroine, Eve, driving those big cars—but now I've come to the conclusion that it's child's play compared with rushing around a crowded canteen!"

A pause.

Then, with a little affected giggle that was new in Mary:

"Of course, the boys are ever so hateful—dear fellows."

"I'm sure they are!" remarked Eve, determined not to allow herself to become irritated at Mary's patronizing manner. But she could not resist nuzzling the question:

"What made you think of coming Iowa here?"

Mary did not flinch. She was prepared for this. "She was prepared for this," she said.

"I heard that you were here," she gazed at her friend through half-closed eyes. "I felt so useless—sort of selfish—knowing how hard you were working, while I was having such a good time in town."

Mary's "good time," if the truth be told, had hitherto been a somewhat negative affair, as Eve well knew. But Eve, surprised, said nothing.

And the other girl went on: "And so I remembered about the canteen here—my aunt fixed things up for me—here I am!"

She did not add a word about her airman cousin as the raison d'être of her arrival.

Languidly she rose and regarded herself complacently in the looking glass. She was looking her best—and knew it. With a little flourish she dabbed some scented powder on her chin and nose. "Want some, Eve?"

"No, thanks," replied that daisied curtsy, staring at Mary as though she was a new being—as indeed she was. What could have happened to effect this change?

Eve had her own surmises. Mary was now busily applying a touch of carmine to her lips.

"Don't look at me like that, Eve," she flung a little wistful hair off her forehead, then carefully arranged it in kiss-curl fashion. "See, how does that suit me?"

"Mary, you're crazy—or else in love!" Eve's voice held a surprised infection. "I've never known you take such pains with your appearance!"

Mary wheeled round then—dropping into the easy chair which she had just vacated—she crossed a well-shod foot over the other, lit a cigarette and began to talk.

"I'm neither crazy—nor in love," Mary remarked airily. "One gets no appreciation for either feat, I can assure you!" She blew a little ring of smoke. "If one wants to be appreciated, my dear, one never falls in love!" Then she added, firmly:

"Believe me, Eve, men are all humbugs—and the only way to manage them is—camouflage!"

Eve started at her, bewildered. That Mary—the hitherto unsought damsel—should set herself up as an authority on the gentle passion was astonishing to her.

"Don't look so surprised," went on the other tranquilly. "I know you've had heaps of attention, Eve; in fact, you've been hopelessly spoiled! But now that I've awakened—she looked at her friend with a determined air—"now that I've awakened, I begin to know a lot more about men than you'd credit me with!"

With an airy gesture Mary flicked the ash from the end of her cigarette, as though she were a thoroughly sophisticated woman of the world.

"How—awakened?" repeated Eve, in a blank sort of way.

"I was asleep before," said Mary frankly. "Bugged under an old fallacy, that's as obsolete as the hills—the fallacy about the 'nice, sweet home girls' that men admire." Believe me, Eve, the whole thing's bunkum!"

"What do they admire?" rejoined the other girl, faintly amused at her friend's vehemence.

"Yourself, for instance!" came the answer. "Though you're not absolutely a good example, for you make mistakes!"

"In what way?" Eve looked amazed.

"In speaking out your mind too frankly—to your admirers. Mary can never forgive a girl for putting them in the wrong."

"So I'm too frank?" repeated Eve, remembering her parting words to Wilfred. He never would forgive her.

"You're spoiled!" said Mary briskly and decisively.

Eve's face fell. It was only an hour or two ago that the man she cared for had told her very much the same thing.

"Don't look downcast," pursued her candid friend. "The spoiling process has had one good result—consciousness of charm. It's what all the dear, sweet home girls lack—and why half of them are left upon the shelf."

"But now I've awakened, and realized that men don't want timid, shrinking violets, but something bright and cheery. So I've decided to be 'conscious of my charm.'"

"You don't interest me to that extent!" rejoined Eve.

Mary smiled good humoredly. "Oh, you don't need to bother your head about them—they just follow you in flocks," she said.

A sharp tinkle of the telephone bell cut into the conversation.

Eve started, flushed. Could it possibly be Wilfred?

"I'll go and answer it," said Mary, noting the little flush.

At the sound of the voice which flitted across the fire a curious expression passed over Mary's face. And—had any one been listening—the following one-sided dialogue might have been heard:

"Oh, is that you? Eve's very tired. Better not call her. I'll take a message to her. She's just going to bed. Hello. It's frightfully dark outside, isn't it? Nervous? Just a little. It's rather a walk across to the canteen. No, I've no one to go with me. I guess I'm a coward about being out late. Oh, thanks ever so much. It's really far too good of you. Goodbye."

A distinctly disappointed man hung up the receiver at the other end. He had wanted very much to speak to Eve.

"Who was it?" faltered that damsel on Mary's return.

"Only Wilfred," said the latter carefully, avoiding Eve's eye. "He evidently guessed that I was here."

"Why you boys so het up over where I'm buryin' this poor ol' dead dog"

"It's right over the tunnel and he'll cave it in sure"

"Dig the hole over here an' we help you"

"Here's a much better place"

"The members of the club finally had to pay the Jones' hired man 20 cents not to dig that hole directly over the secret tunnel leading to the club house."

"A dumb pap—"

"Is there a band practicing upstairs, Mrs. Flamm?"

"It's my husband playing with the baby—"

"Toot! toot! boom! bang!"

"Toot! boom! bla-a-zoom!"

"Ho magde! I wish you'd come up."

"What for?"

"I can't get this child to sleep."

THE GUMPS—STRONGHEART

"He was inquiring about your arm, Eve."

"I'm tired—I'll be getting off to bed," said the other, a little wearily, "and—thank you very much for coming to cheer me up, Mary. Good night!"

But it was a heavy-hearted Eve who fell asleep that night.

Work—the great antidote for all unhappiness—fully absorbed Eve for the next three days.

Yet, despite this philosophic energy, her young heart experienced an odd sensation when business brought her once more face to face with Captain Roscommon.

"Some precious tin-hat coming down from London, and I've got to meet him," airily remarked that young man. "I hate to bother you, but they've detailed you to drive me to the station." He glanced at his wrist watch.

"Half-past twelve—we ought to be off—they're expecting him here for a late lunch."

He climbed into the seat beside the girl.

Conversation did not flourish. The train, however, did not produce the expected visitor.

"Old boy hasn't shown up," remarked the airman as he strolled to the waiting car and smiled at the pretty chauffeur.

"Then I'd better get right back to the camp," rejoined Eve, with alacrity, proceeding to turn the car.

"Instructions are that we're to wait until he does arrive!" It was rather pleasant to give orders to this independent little lady.

"We'd better go and get some lunch in the hotel," he added. "The next train won't be in for a couple of hours, and it's going to rain like blazes!"

"I prefer to stay out here," came back the chilly answer.

The rain began to pour in torrents. Eve stepped down into the road.

And before she could say a word Captain Roscommon had taken her place and ran the big car skillfully into the hotel garage!

Eve had scarcely recovered from her astonishment when he returned.

"I've ordered lunch," he said shortly. "Come, let's be moving."

Silently she walked beside this masterful young man, and together they entered the hotel.

It was a large, old-fashioned place, its wide, tiled hall more like the interior of a country house.

They sat at a little corner table in the luncheon-room.

"At least we can be intimate," he said, smiling frankly at her over the menu card. "Life's too short to quarrel!"

"You—you are very philosophic," hazarded Eve. "Nothing seems to worry—or upset you."

He nodded.

"I take life as it comes," he said. "When one has knocked around the world the way I've done, it doesn't do to let one's self be worried. The whole thing's a matter of will-power—and I honestly do believe that everything works out for the best!"

"Even— even disappointments?" queried Eve.

"Even disappointments!" came back the cheery answer.

Eve's young heart sank.

When lunch was over he strolled out to the office, purchased two cigars and returned to Eve.

"We've still got an hour to kill—let's go into the smoke-room," he remarked nonchalantly. "There's a huge fire there, and we can have a chat."

Eve sank into one big chair, while the airman, lighting his cigar, dropped easily into the other. A little silence fell between them.

"You—you mustn't smoke that cigar with the band on," said Eve at last. "It—it isn't done!"

The airman smiled.

"Such ridiculous little customs you have in England!" he remarked. But he removed the paper band.

Silence again.

"Please talk to me," said Eve, in a small, earnest voice.

Her companion smiled a little.

"I'm not a particularly talkative fellow," he said, between puffs at his cigar. "What do you want to hear?"

"Tell me about yourself," she leaned toward the fire so that her pretty head was half averted.

"There isn't anything much to tell," he said at last. "I've had a pretty rough sort of life—I can't think why you care to hear about it."

"But I do!"

The airman smiled.

"I was a spoiled young kid, to begin with," he said slowly, staring into the heart of the glowing fire, "but my mother died when I was nine years old—and that changed things."

"My father didn't bother very much about me. He let me do pretty well just as I pleased. I changed from a spoiled kid into a rough-and-tumble little boy, very fond of fighting—always in the midst of every scrap!"

Atlanta Players Are Given Shower of Rain at Palatka; Rotarians Entertain Squad

Manager Otto Miller, Speaking for Crackers, Thanks Rotarians for the Splendid Reception Tendered Atlanta Club.

BY HENRY ALLEN.
(Special Staff Correspondent.)

Palatka, Fla., March 13.—(Special.) Between showers the Crackers battery men went through the second workout of the season here this afternoon.

Shortly after 1 o'clock a slight rain threatened to break up the practice, but the squad took the field shortly after 2 o'clock, and under a cloudless sky, with the sun bearing down, the overweight athletes managed to take off a few pounds.

The practice was very much like the one yesterday and although short but strenuous, everyone left the field none the worse for the workout.

The crew had hardly reached the hotel before the rain started again and tonight the players were forced to content themselves with hanging around the hotel lobby.

No more runs so "Charley Horses" have developed among the players but if the wet weather keeps up Manager Miller is looking for several complaints.

Practically the same program was carried out today as heretofore. After a run around the field the twirlers were given an opportunity to throw a few, while Manager Miller, who is expected to do most of the receiving this year, gave all of the pitchers personal attention.

Llewellyn, Newberry, Ware, Brady, Niekhaus, and all of the others were put on the mound and given instructions as to their delivery. Everybody is still taking it easy and the instructions to cut loose will not be in order until later in the week.

Scrubs Take Part.

Several "pepper" games were started which lasted for a good while. No injuries were reported save by the newspaper crew. This correspondent at the present writing has several blisters in all parts of his hand, while Jimmy Ray, of the Journal, who was mistaken for Walter Johnson, when he appeared in uniform, is nursing a sore arm. We attribute our injuries to Manly Llewellyn, formerly of the University of North Carolina, and the New York Yankees. "Lew" says that he wasn't throwing them hard, but the wind was just carrying them along.

The squad was strengthened today by the arrival of Jack Dumont and "Ruddy" Napier. Dumont arrived today at noon, while Napier registered at the hotel late Monday night.

Neither of the twirlers was out in uniform today, but both were around the park giving the outfit the once-over. They will be out ready to go tomorrow when the squad takes the field. With the arrival of Dumont and Napier, Jack Ryan is the only missing player in the outfit. Jack is supposed to be motoring through to Palatka and his arrival is expected momentarily.

While the players were sweating under the regular midsummer weather, it was reported that President Jack Corbett was in New Orleans looking over the outfielders of the New York Yankees, the big league team with which the Crackers are affiliated. Although the report could not be confirmed by Manager Miller it is hoped by the Cracker manager that the fly chasers will report here next week, when the remainder of the squad will go on duty.

The major league first baseman and second baseman, who will report to the club will not be here until around April 1. President Corbett has two men for each position under consideration and either can be secured on short notice.

The pitching staff will be strengthened by another class AA player, if necessary, but at the present Manager Miller seems very well satisfied with the outlook.

The entire squad was the guest of the Rotary club at the noon luncheon today. Fake telegrams from the hometowns of the majority of the players were read while newspapermen came in for their share of the "razing" because of their ignorance of the location of Palatka.

A large geography was displayed while the writer with the other two correspondents were called up and given a stiff lecture and instructed as to the progress of the thriving little Florida city. Manager Otto Miller made a short talk in behalf of the team and thanked the people for the courtesies extended them.

"Never before during the years that I have spent in baseball have I ever been received like this," said the Cracker manager.

The practice was late in starting today because of the luncheon, but all men have been notified to be on the field promptly at 1 o'clock tomorrow.

GIRLS' BASKET TITLE GAME FRIDAY

The Girls' Commercial league championship game will be played Friday night at the Wesley court between the Draughton and Central teams who are now tied for first place.

At present the dope points to Draughton winning the game since they have secured the Wesley Court for practice to improve their goal shooting.

This promises to be a more interesting game than any that has been played in the league.

Since the season tickets will not be good for this game, the price has been reduced to 25 cents and even the players will be required to pay.

BILLY MISKE AFTER BATTLE IN CHICAGO

Hot Springs, March 13.—Billy Miske, St. Paul heavyweight, who has been in light training here for the past two months, departed today for St. Paul to enter his final bout with Jack Reddy, on business matters.

Miske intimated that tentative plans were under way for a bout at Chicago between himself and some leading heavyweight. He declared that he would probably return to Hot Springs within the next 10 days or two weeks and enter intensive training.

Miske, accompanied by Floyd Johnson, the young Louis heavyweight, attended the Harry Foley-Glen Clicker bout here Monday night. Johnson is training for his bout with Jess Willard at New York city, May 12.

DECATUR HIGH WINS EASILY

The girls' basketball team of the Decatur High school defeated the Washington seminary team by the score of 35 to 7 Tuesday afternoon. Decatur easily outplayed the opposing team and throughout the entire game the Decatur team was confident that they would win an easy victory.

This is the last game of the season for Decatur, having won 15 straight games. The stars for Decatur were Bundscho, Libbey and Stone, for Washington seminary, Luntford and Lawlows.

The line-up:
DECATUR Pos. WASH. S.
Cunningham (9).....Dallis
Ehle (2).....Daniel
Stone (8).....Luntford (7)
Bundscho (10).....Rawlings
Libbey (10).....Morris
Substitution: Decatur, Gedeney (4); Washington seminary, Bowen and Little.

HOPPE LEADS CHALLENGER

New York, March 13.—Recovering the cue wizardry for which he is noted, Willie Hoppe, 18-2 ball line billiard champion, tonight overcame the lead of 223 points Jack Schaefer gained in the first block of their 1-500 match last night and reached the 1,000-point mark while Schaefer was counting 994.

A two cushion draw failed for Hoppe after he had made two three-cushion shots. Schaefer counted 99 line nursing and missed a one-cushion bank off the lower side rail.

Hoppe's mastery then returned to him. Without moving the balls from lower end of the table he counted 100, drove three cushions for a perfect game, and continued, passing Schaefer's high run of 130 made in the first block, and making 143. He missed a two-cushion shot in the corner for position. Schaefer made one and missed a two-cushion shot. The night's score thus far was: Hoppe, 294; Schaefer, 284.

Hoppe made three and flubbed a short draw on the side rail. Schaefer missed and Hoppe again counted three and missed a short follow. Schaefer counted nine and missed a wide two-cushion carom. Hoppe counted five and failed on a left-handed four-cushion shot. Schaefer counted one and missed a two-cushion shot.

In a series of daring shots for position, Hoppe counted 26. With the balls a foot apart in the center of the table, he tried a one-cushion shot and failed. Schaefer added 22 to his string and missed an easy massé. The score then was, Hoppe, 328; Schaefer, 316.

Hoppe Increases

Hoppe increased his grand total to 706 with a remarkable run of 101 in his fifteenth inning of the night's game. He resorted to the most daring shots of the match trying to clear his table.

His twenty-second shot, a long two-cushion bank in the corner, was missed by a hair. He missed a two-cushion bank shot, three one-cushion banks and four difficult masses during the run.

Schaefer ran 40 in his inning and retired after playing a two-cushion carom wide. Hoppe counted 27 playing a one-cushion out shot. Schaefer counted nine and missed a shot. The grand total then was, Schaefer, 357; Hoppe, 743.

Schaefer collected 71 in his turn, missing a bank the length of the table. Hoppe counted 38, increasing his grand total to 811. He missed a two-cushion shot for position.

Schaefer ran 61, and needing but 11 for the 1,000, he missed a one-cushion draw. Hoppe counted 62.

Schaefer ran but three, appearing nervous because of the talk in the gallery. Hoppe counted 28, and overdraw a shot for position. Needing eight Schaefer counted two and played wide on an easy cut shot.

Hoppe nursed astraddle the ball lines. Reaching 50 he drove to the head of the table and continued the run.

Reaching 70, Hoppe was forced to split in order to drive out of ball. He got the balls together again at the count of 80. He went on for the two finished count of 99 and left the balls in perfect position for the resumption of play in the final block of the match tomorrow.

Budd Outpointed.

Indianapolis, March 13.—Frankie Jones, of San Francisco, outpointed Battling Budd, of Atlanta, Ga., in a ten-round boxing contest here last night, in the opinion of newspaper men. The winner was welter weight, Freddie Boorde, light-weight, of Birmingham, Ala., won a technical knockout over Louis Lavell, of Anderson, in the third round of a scheduled ten-round bout.

Last great attempt to corner the Chicago wheat market was in 1900.

Argentine Giant Confers With Rickard and Plans To Meet Champ Some Day

Charges in New York Afternoon Newspapers That Fight Was "Fixed" Ridiculed By Majority of the Sport Writers.

New York, March 13.—Louis Angel Firpo, South American pugilist, whose stock in the heavyweight circles has taken a big jump by his knockout of Bill Brennan in the twelfth round at Madison Square garden last night, is looking for more world's to conquer.

The giant from the Argentine discussed future plans today with Promoter, Tex Rickard, and a virtual agreement was reached for Firpo to box the winner of the match between Jess Willard and Floyd Johnson, scheduled at the Yankee stadium, May 12.

The bout, Rickard said, probably would take place in June or July at the Yankee park. If victorious again, Firpo is assured of his ambition, a match with Jack Dempsey for the world's title, probably in September.

Rickard has made no premature plans for a Firpo-Dempsey contest, despite reports to the contrary, but should such a match materialize, there is a strong possibility that it would be held in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

where Firpo is something of a national hero.

Charges that the fight last night was "fixed" for Firpo to win were published by two afternoon papers today but met with ridicule from an overwhelming majority of writers, critics, and others qualified to judge the merits of the contest.

The battle scared Chicagoan and his manager, Leo P. Flynn, emphatically denied the charges and pointed out that the fight was a legitimate one. "I have never won or lost on a foul or in any way been accused of 'throwing' a contest," Brennan declared. Firpo was a strong for me. He is a natural fighter and what he lacks in science he makes up in brute power.

"I am ready to fight anybody Rickard picks," Firpo declared through an interpreter. "I would like to fight Dempsey but I want to be in much better shape before meeting the champion. I wasn't at my best last night."

"Dutch" Bernsen Certain Of Sticking With Vols

Nashville's Spring Camp at Jackson, Miss., Harbors Many Players Expected to Shine Good.

Jackson, Miss., March 13.—(Special.)—Secretary Lillard and Manager Jimmie Hamilton have been busy at the Nashville training camp at Jackson getting the battery men started on the road to condition, and the park and training quarters in readiness for the second contingent for candidates who are to report tomorrow.

Work of getting the diamond in shape for infield work has progressed rapidly, and is now in shape for the influx of basemen and outfielders. The men arriving this week will find the pitchers acclimated and rounding into shape, and ready to take their daily turn pitching to hitters.

Hamilton has held the men down this week, letting them slowly open up and by the middle of the week the pitchers will in all probability be called upon to give all they have to the batters. This is contingent upon the weather holding good.

Hamilton continues to praise Pat Haley as first string catcher, and Effert to give the big boy an occasional rest.

Has Fine Record.

Haley comes to Nashville with a record of catching from 140 to 150 games each season, and last year was the first time he has fallen below 300 in hitting. He ranked second in fielding for the year, with an average of .986, two points behind the leading catcher, Eddie Sims, a semi-pro catcher with some promise, is being brought here, but it is thought that he will have to step some to out either of the vets.

Toney Faeth, George McQuillan, George "Cy" Morgan, Ben Smith, Lewis Gillenwater and "Lefty" Harris are the most promising looking pitchers to report during the past week.

Faeth is a husky that has a record here on the Pacific coast last year but got away to a bad start due to an attack of flu, and as he was rounding into shape broke a bone in his foot. He has an easy windup and has a side arm delivery that looks like the mustard. He arrived in camp a little overweight, and has been doing some extra work to get in shape, but long before the first bell he will be going good. He can hit like the fans like to see them. He bats and throws right-handed.

Morgan a Side Arm.

George Morgan looks like a sure shot for a regular Vol. He is an other right-hander with a side arm delivery. Morgan is slight of build, but certainly looks like a real pitcher. He has a nice assortment of stuff, according to some of the boys who have seen him in action.

"Lefty" Harris is from Ashland City, Tenn. has served an apprenticeship in the bushes and is now getting ready to pitch. "Lefty" stood near the head of the column in the Central league last year with Grand Rapids.

NEW YORKERS WORRIED OVER RUTH'S INJURIES

New York, March 13.—Partisans of the New York Yankees were worried today by word from New Orleans that Babe Ruth, whose effort to start off in tip-top condition to regain his home town honors was baffled first by influenza, now has sore ankles, due to over-exertion.

His ankles were heavily bandaged yesterday, and he watched practice from the stands. Bob Meusel, a slugging outfielder, has signed a 1923 contract.

At the Giants' camp at San Antonio, Captain Bancroft got into infield practice and the regular infield went to work.

Golf League Opens.

Thomasville, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—Thomasville golfers are getting ready for the first game of the 1923 season of the Georgia Florida Golf league. The local team will play Albany in that city in the opening game Thursday.

The season opens earlier than usual in order that the clubs may finish up before the big Fourth of July tournament, which is an annual event in Thomasville. Only eight men will be played by each club this season, instead of ten as has been the number heretofore. Announcement has not yet been made as to those who will constitute the team going from here to Albany.

OGLETHORPE BOXERS BUSY

GAME CALLED OFF.

The scheduled practice game between the Petrels and "Bird" Hope's Fulton lads failed to materialize yesterday afternoon on account of the condition of Hermance field. Boats and boats were in vogue in that vicinity.

BY JOHN STATION.

Just what Coach Clay, Tech baseball mentor, intends to do with Gassen is still a matter of much discussion. He has been using him at various and sundry places during the last two weeks in the endeavor to find some place where he will fit in nicely. And it seems that Gassen will make a very capable utility man, for he has shown up to credit wherever played.

The case of Gassen seems to sum up like this: He is an exceptional hitter, but not so exceptional in the field. He is a good fielder and all that, but has not shown enough brilliancy to warrant Coach Clay giving a berth to him over some old player, who naturally has the edge in experience.

Gassen's regular position is catcher. He is a good catcher, but, as said before, lacks the experience necessary to supplant either Palmsino or Branton.

In Many Positions.

So Coach Clay has been shifting him around any old place. He has played every position on the field except shortstop, and could do that in a pinch. He handles the hot corner with a good amount of talent and shows up to good advantage at second. He looks fine sure enough at first, and plays field with a big dependable number to step against the Tech entries.

Roberts is Out.

One of the Petrel's best bats was lost about two weeks ago when "Tiny" Roberts of track and football fame withdrew from the university. "Tiny" tipped the scales at the poundage of 240 and the fact that he accomplished a knockout in one minute and forty seconds speaks for his hitting power. Other notables in Petrel boxing history that failed to return are "Al" Simpson, popular 12-pounder, and Vickers, who from last reports is wintering in Cuba.

The Petrel representatives will include Jack Milton, welterweight middleweight and middle light heavyweight; Porter, light heavyweight; Randle or Young for the 124-group and Branscomb for the flyweight division. The list of candidates for seniors in this particular line is not large but Jack expects to get a dependable number to step against the Tech entries.

The final list of Petrel entrants will not be available until several competitive bouts are held to determine the best candidate.

SOLDIERS IN TWO DEFEATS

BY IRVINE R. HALE.

The basketball season at Fort McPherson ended last night with two defeats for the soldiers. Notwithstanding these two reverses, the season has been a very successful one for the Fort 33 basketball team, having been won. Now that the cage game is over all the players will be devoting their time to the diamond.

The first game brought together Fort Mc and the "Tramps" team. The "Tramps" won by the margin of 30 to 23. The game was fast all the way and one of the prettiest seen all the way. The long center for the "Tramps" was the factor in the Fort's downfall, his basket shooting and floor work being of the very best caliber. Captain Bolling was the star for the Fort.

The second game was another of the fast type, with the National Carbon five. The score ended 35 to 32 in favor of the Carbons. Grant for Fort, 33; Carbon, 4 out of 12 tries; Chisholm, none out of 2 tries. Referee, Perry.

Miss Collett Wins.

Belle Air Heights, Fla., March 14. Miss Glenn Collett, of Providence, R. I., national women's golf champion, won the sharks championship today when she played over the short course in 84, and the long course in 85. Her playing today was excellent and had she putted better she would have been below 80. Mrs. Alex Smith won the handicap event with a score of 175 for the double round.

Death rate of tuberculosis in this country last year was 113.4 per 100,000, the lowest ever recorded.

Martin Burke Wins.

New Orleans, La., March 13.—Conceding forty-four points to his opponent, Martin Burke, of New Orleans, won a referee's decision over Farmer Lord, of St. Paul, in a 15-round bout here last night. Lodge was floored in the first round with a smashing left hook to the jaw. He rallied, quickly, however, and for the remainder of the bout put up a game fight, but was decisively outpointed by the local man. Lodge weighed 222 pounds and Burke 178.

Warner's Aces to Give Opening Anniversary Concert

Warner's Seven Aces, The Atlanta Constitution orchestra, above, and Byron H. Warner, musical director, at the left. The Aces are, reading from left to right in the large picture: Shucks, Parks, drums and xylophones; El Pritchett, saxophone; Conrad Buckner, clarinet and saxophone; Byron Warner, director and pianist; Bob Pittman, banjo; Ralph Bennett, violin; Tom Brannon, business manager and trumpet; and Jimmy O'Neil, bass horn, trumpet and trombone.

TUNEFUL TUNES PUT OUT BY ACES

Warner Music Makers Give Full Program With Several in Solo Parts, Old Waltz Back.

If ever tunes were tuneful it was when Warner's Seven Aces, The Atlanta Constitution orchestra, put them into the air last night at 6 o'clock from Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution.

The Aces didn't shortchange anyone last night. They gave 45 minutes of the best popular music that has been broadcast in a long time from Station WGM.

Several of the Aces had their little flings at the microphone alone. El Pritchett, for instance, played "Rose of Picardy" as a saxophone solo. He had a few bars of "Turkey in the Straw" in which he played the melody on the saxophone. All he does is take two waltzes in each hand and work them just as they are, without any fancy ones. But probably it's a job to do even that much.

You could hear Tom Brannon's trumpet all over the place in the opening number, "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" from "Chauve Souris," and that gave Tom his opportunity. Bob Pittman got his mean when in when the Aces played one of their tunes that has a few bars of "Turkey in the Straw" in it. Bob might have made a good breakdown banjoist if the Aces had failed to snatch him.

The Aces didn't shortchange anyone last night. They gave 45 minutes of the best popular music that has been broadcast in a long time from Station WGM.

Aces and Soloists Will Give Anniversary Concert

At six o'clock Saturday evening Tom Brannon in the studio of Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, will play as a trumpet solo, "Mighty Lak a Rose," with Byron H. Warner at the piano.

To thousands and thousands of regular listeners to Station WGM this will mark the opening of Station WGM's three big anniversary concerts planned on Saturday night.

The three concerts all starting on March 17—the last one running until 1:30 a. m. Sunday—will be the only anniversary concerts given from Station WGM to celebrate the completion of the first year of broadcasting by The Constitution.

One year ago on March 17, The Constitution, using the apparatus of the Georgia Railway and Power company, began radio broadcasting in the south on a regular schedule.

Will Feature Aces.

But to go back to the first of the three anniversary concerts. It will be given between 6 and 7 o'clock by Warner's Seven Aces, The Constitution orchestra. Mr. Warner is the musical director of the Aces, while Mr. Brannon is business manager.

But the feature of this opening solo will be the fact that on September 1, 1922, when The Constitution commissioned its own powerful broadcasting transmitter, "Mighty Lak a Rose" written by Frank L. Stanton, the South's greatest living poet and a member of The Constitution staff, was the first number given and it was played as a trumpet solo by Mr. Brannon with Mr. Warner at the piano.

The first anniversary concert from Station WGM will be given by the Aces, assisted by two soloists from the studio of Miss Margaret Hecht, Atlanta voice teacher. One of these soloists is Miss Minna Hecker, coloratura soprano, who assisted the station staff, was the first number given and it was played as a trumpet solo by Mr. Brannon with Mr. Warner at the piano.

Miss Hecker has one of the best coloratura voices in the city and it shows excellent training.

Earnest Allen to Sing.

The other soloist from Miss Hecht's studio will be Earnest Allen, baritone. Mr. Allen has been heard before on Station WGM's programs. He is a finished singer and his part in the program by the Aces Saturday night will be an important one.

The Aces for Saturday evening are planning on grouping dance selections and their heavier semi-classical and classical offerings, so that the listeners to their concerts will be given the best.

But it is enough to say that the concert will feature Warner's Seven Aces, America's second radio orchestra, with such soloists as Miss Hecker and Mr. Allen.

EXCELLENT TRIO OFFERED BY VOLPI

Miss Emily G. Watts, Miss Kate Goldstein and Ford Williams Entertain From WGM.

Listeners last evening between 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock were given a delightful Volpi trio concert from Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution. It was a concert that gave to listeners the efforts of three excellent artists.

The vocalists on the program last evening from the studio of Signor E. Volpi, Atlanta teacher of voice and coach of opera, were Miss Emily G. Watts, mezzo-soprano, and Ford Williams, a comparatively new baritone.

One new radio entertainer was introduced to listeners last evening in Miss Katie Goldstein, pianist, who is a member of the younger class receiving their training with I. Mayer, of the Mayer Piano school. Miss Goldstein in her initial radio appearance did excellently in her three selections.

Signor Volpi himself played the piano accompaniment for all of the vocal selections.

Miss Goldstein for her part of the program played "Fete Bachique" by Neustadt, "Albumball" by Liebling, and "Norwegian Bridal Party," by Grieg.

Miss Watts was charming in her songs last night. She sang "Dear Little Girl of Mine," "An Old Song," "The Woodman," "Two Eyes of Green," "Reveries of Pears," and "To You" by Spinks.

Mr. Williams sang several of his numbers especially for friends in Georgia cities and in West Virginia. His songs were "Beauty's Eyes" by Tosti, "Mona" by Stephen Adams, "The Road that Brought You to Me," (request), "Good-bye, Good-bye," (request), and "Hell on Them Deep and Dark Blue Ocean."

ARTISTIC QUARTET ON BILL TONIGHT

Mrs. Marcelle Stanton McGahee Sponsors Concert for Listeners on Pacific Coast.

Two pianists of distinct ability last evening at 6 o'clock augmented the program by Warner's Seven Aces, The Atlanta Constitution orchestra.

One of them was Jimmy Finley, who is frequently heard on WGM programs, and is also a baritone, being a pupil of Signor E. Volpi.

The other pianist was Robert Pfefferkorn, of Oglethorpe university. Mr. Pfefferkorn was heard once before on a Constitution program and his music was delightful.

Last evening Mr. Finley played two popular medleys, while Mr. Pfefferkorn offered Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C sharp minor."

Table with 2 columns: Item, Price. Rows include Open, High, Low, Close for various cotton contracts.

New York, March 13.—The feature in the cotton market today was renewed buying of the old crop months which was supposed to represent covering by trade shorts.

May contracts sold up to 31.26, or 44 points net higher and within 21 points of the recent high record, and the strength of the old crop positions combined with continued complaints of delayed farm work in the south and west continued to keep the market in a bullish mood.

The market opened firm 2 to 29 points higher with near months showing the greatest gains on the relatively firm Liverpool cables, bullish overnight spot markets and reports of excessive rains in the eastern belt.

There was enough realizing to cause some irregularity but offerings were absorbed on a comparatively moderate volume. Trade interest seemed to have cotton to buy on all the dips and after the early realizing had been absorbed, there appeared to be a very few contracts for sale.

The market showed increasing firmness during the afternoon, with March selling up to 31.03 and July to 30.20, or 39 to 47 points net higher on the old crop months.

COTTON LETTERS

The market has shown a persistent firmness for old crop months as a result of a large volume of buying and the lack of offerings reflecting a well-liquidated long position in those months.

The view of that there may be a question about the cotton crop in the south and west is still a fairly strong disposition to go short on these months.

BONDS STRONGER BOND MARKET

Sharp Rise in Sugar-Lump Liens Feature Activities in Industrial Securities Group.

New York, March 13.—Market irregularities characterized the price movements in today's bond market, but a better tone was displayed by foreign and industrial securities, a sharp rise in sugar-lump liens featuring the latter group.

The reaction tendency in United States government bonds, which showed losses of 2 to 20 cents on $100, was ascribed in part to selling in order to provide funds for income tax purposes.

Punta Alegre 7 1/2 up 1 1/2, led the advance in sugar-lump liens, which were sold on higher stock and commodity prices. Wilson Packing convertible 6s and Armour 4 1/2-2s each dropped about a point, changes among other active industrial issues being largely of a fractional nature.

Fluctuations in the railroad list were decidedly mixed. Some of the speculative mortgages such as New Haven 6s advanced a point or more.

WHEAT MARKET

Possible Wholesale Shifting Huge Stores Wheat to Chicago Causes Downward Trend.

Chicago, March 13.—Possible wholesale shifting of wheat to Chicago from other terminals did a good deal today to bring about a setback in the price of wheat here.

The market closed steady but 3 to 4 cents net lower with May 1 1/2 to 1 1/4 and July 1 1/4 to 1 1/2. Corn led 7-8 to 1 1/2-2 and oats 3-8 to 1 1/2.

Arrival of fourteen carloads of wheat 2 weeks here from Omaha today tended to emphasize talk which was current about bringing back to Chicago wheat stored on vessels at the eastern end of the great lakes.

On the ensuing downward swing of prices, gains made yesterday were wiped out and the finish was at the low point of the decline.

Falling off of nearly 1,000,000 bushels in the United States visible supply total had more or less to do with the temporary strength which characterized the wheat market in the first part of the day.

Cash Grain. Chicago, March 13.—Closing out: Wheat, May, 1.19 1/2; July, 1.14 1/2.

Possible Wholesale Shifting Huge Stores Wheat to Chicago Causes Downward Trend.

Chicago, March 13.—Possible wholesale shifting of wheat to Chicago from other terminals did a good deal today to bring about a setback in the price of wheat here.

The market closed steady but 3 to 4 cents net lower with May 1 1/2 to 1 1/4 and July 1 1/4 to 1 1/2. Corn led 7-8 to 1 1/2-2 and oats 3-8 to 1 1/2.

Arrival of fourteen carloads of wheat 2 weeks here from Omaha today tended to emphasize talk which was current about bringing back to Chicago wheat stored on vessels at the eastern end of the great lakes.

On the ensuing downward swing of prices, gains made yesterday were wiped out and the finish was at the low point of the decline.

Falling off of nearly 1,000,000 bushels in the United States visible supply total had more or less to do with the temporary strength which characterized the wheat market in the first part of the day.

Cash Grain. Chicago, March 13.—Closing out: Wheat, May, 1.19 1/2; July, 1.14 1/2.

Live Stock. The United States Bureau of agricultural economics released the following figures for the week ending March 13, 1921.

Chicago, March 13.—Hogs: Receipts, 10,000.

and Ralph Baker, sentenced to hang on Friday, for killing J. W. Morton, an ex-deputy sheriff.

The question of the age of the younger defendant, Ralph, has been raised by large numbers of church people who are begging for the boys' lives, it being their contention that he is but 15 years old.

Inspection of the family Bible gives the date of birth of Ralph Baker as November 29, 1907. The last two numerals in the year date "1907" have, however, apparently been changed at some time. The marks of erasure are plain, the paper at this spot being nearly worn through and the smudge commonly caused by an eraser showing all around the figures.

In addition, it appears as though all the entries in the Bible record have been over-traced with the same, or a similar, pencil to the one used in the "7" in the year date.

The commissioners stated Tuesday that it was probable they would begin a review of the case on Wednesday and make their decision some time during the day.

Inasmuch as Governor Hardwick is scheduled to leave for Florida on Thursday, he will have to pass upon the case before he leaves, as the double hanging is set for Friday.
